RULES

TO BE OBSERVED BY THE

LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from nine o'clock A. M. to five o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue, kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced. He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member,

Two Folios for five
Two Quartos for three
Two Octavos, or
Four Duodecimos, for two } Weeks, and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. Persons, however, who reside at the distance of seven miles or upward, are permitted to have books one week longer than the above-mentioned times. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member, who shall hire one or more books shall first give a note for double the value thereof, and shall also deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every member, or other person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, the following rates, weekly:—For Duodecimos and Octavos fifteen cents, Quartos twenty cents, and Folios twenty-five cents, and no smaller sums, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Every member, or other person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (besides the hire, when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share) fifteen cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled; and if not so returned within three months from the same period, the note or deposit money shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. Books returned are to be delivered into the hands of the Librarian, to be examined whether damaged or not.

VIII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

IX. If a member, and one who is not a member, should apply for the same book at the same time, the member shall have the preference.

X. A member may take out on hire, without a deposit, as many books in value for which his share in the Library shall, by the Librarian, be deemed a sufficient security, on the same terms in other respects, as persons who are not members.

XI. The Librarian shall furnish the Directors, at each monthly meeting, with an account of the fines and forfeitures which have accrued during the preceding month.

XII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

XIII. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

XIV. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XV. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying twelve dollars annually, in advance, commencing at any period.

BULLETIN OF THE LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 7

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,
ALSO
RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

(OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.)

[Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them, and paying at the desk the cost of postal cards, will be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.]

RULES.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from half-past eight o'clock A. M. until six o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced.

He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member or subscriber,

Two Folios, Two Quartos, Two Octavos, or Four Duodecimos,	For Two Weeks,

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member or subscriber, who shall hire one or more books shall first deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books ; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, ten cents a week for each volume, and no smaller sum, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Any person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (in addition to the hire when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share), ten cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled, and the deposit money, if any, shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VIII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

IX. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

X. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XI. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

XII. When any member or subscriber shall desire to take out any book or books, the value of which shall exceed that of his share, or the proportionate part of his subscription unexpired, the Librarian may require him to deposit a sum of money double that excess.

XIII. Books will be sent to members or subscribers, if desired, by book post, express, or local despatch, at their expense.

LIST OF THE MORE IMPORTANT BOOKS ADDED SINCE JANUARY, 1881.

[The letter R indicates the Ridgway Branch, and (unless otherwise noted) the books thus marked in this catalogue are the gift of the late Dr. James Rush.]

BULLETIN OF THE LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 8

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,
ALSO
RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

(OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.)

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them, may pay at the desk the cost of postal cards, and will then be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.

Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

RULES.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from half-past eight o'clock A. M. until six o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced.

He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member or subscriber,

Two Folios, Two Quartos, Two Octavos, or Four Duodecimos,	For Two Weeks,

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member or subscriber, who shall hire one or more books shall first deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books ; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, ten cents a week for each volume, and no smaller sum, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Any person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (in addition to the hire when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share), ten cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled, and the deposit money, if any, shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VIII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

IX. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

X. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XI. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

XII. When any member or subscriber shall desire to take out any book or books, the value of which shall exceed that of his share, or the proportionate part of his subscription unexpired, the Librarian may require him to deposit a sum of money double that excess.

XIII. Books will be sent to members or subscribers, if desired, by book post, express, or local despatch, at their expense.

LIST OF THE MORE IMPORTANT BOOKS ADDED SINCE JULY, 1881.

The Roman Instituto, associated as it is with the Berlin Academy and with its more recent branch in Athens, is the centre of archæological study at the present day. The scholarly articles appearing year by year in the Annali; the accurate account of new excavations given month by month in the Bulletino; and the series of artistic plates—already 1600 in number—contained in the Monumenti, form a whole of the highest value to students of archæology.

50938, O. Las Casas—Carta (1545). R. Lond. 1854.

The courageous Bishop addressed this letter, now printed for the first time, to the "Royal Audiencia of the Confines" that had been lately established at Gracias-a-Dios in Honduras, setting forth with the self-reliance and spirit of a martyr the wrongs and grievances of the Indians. — Henry Stevens. (100 copies printed.)

50936, O. Las Casas—Carta (1554). R. Lond. 1854.

A hitherto unpublished letter of the great defender and protector of the Indians of the New World, the Clerigo Bartolome de Las Casas, to the Dominican Fathers of the Chapter of Guatamala and Chiapa, declaring his opinion as Bishop of Chiapa against the sale of the Reversion of the Encomiendas of the Indians, another name for perpetual slavery. — Henry Stevens. (100 copies printed.)

Having regard to the motives which led to its publication, the magnitude of the undertaking, the labor and time expended in printing, leaf by leaf, upon a hand-press, the 1512 pages of which it is composed, its colossal size, excellent typography, the quality of its paper (made at Ephrata), its historical and genealogical value and its great rarity, it easily stands at the head of our colonial books. Among the literary achievements of the Germans of Pennsylvania, it surpasses, though five years later, the great quarto Bible of Saur, the first in America, printed at Germantown in 1743, which, for nearly half a century, had no English rival.—Pennsylvania Magazine.

Among the treasures acquired by the British Museum at the Weigel sale at Leipsic, in 1872, by far the most important was the celebrated copy of the Ars Moriendi, a block-book, executed in the best style of art prevalent at the time of its production, perfect as to the number of its leaves, and in a marvellous state of preservation. For this remarkable production, the trustees paid the sum of £1072 10s.—Introduction.

Zionitischer Weyrauchs Huegel oder Meyrrhen Berg . . . zum Dienst Der in dem Abend-Ländischen Welt-Theil als bey dem Untergang der Sonnen erweckten Kirche Gottes, und zu ihrer Ermunterung auf die Mitternächtige Zukunft des Brautigams aus Licht gegeben. Germantown: Gedruckt bey Christoph Saur. L. 1739.

Samuel W. Pennypacker, Esq., has kindly contributed the following note:—

This book contains a preface written at Ephrata, Pa., 14th of Fourth mo. 1739, which with the title-page covers fourteen pages; seven hundred and ninety two pages of hymns, and fourteen pages of index. It is dedicated "To all solitary Turtle-Doves cooing in the wilderness as a spiritual harp—playing in the many times of divine visitation." There are a number of facts in the bibliographical history of the Weyrauchs Hügel, any one of which would be enough to make it a remarkable publication. It was the first book printed in German type in America. It was the first book from the justly celebrated and prolific colonial press of Christopher Saur of Germantown. A letter from Germantown dated Nov. 16, 1738, and published in the "Geistliche Fama," a European periodical of the Inspired, says: "We have here a German book-publishing house established by Saur, and the Seventh-day Baptists have had a great hymn book printed of old and new hymns mixed." In rather a curious way it led to the establishment of the Ephrata press. The 37th verse of the 400th hymn runs as follows:—

Sehet, sehet, sehet, an!
Sehet, sehet an den Mann!
Der von Gott erhoeret ist,
Der ist unser Herr und Christ.

which literally translated is—

Look, look, look,
Look, look upon the man;
He is heard by God;
He is our Lord and Christ.

The compositor asked Saur whether he thought that more than one Christ had appeared. Saur inquired of him why he suggested such an idea; when the man pointed out this verse and said it appeared to him that by it Conrad Beissel, the founder of the Ephrata Cloister, meant himself. Saur wrote this to Beissel, and asked whether it had any foundation; whereupon Beissel replied to him that he was a fool. This language did not please Saur, who soon after issued a pamphlet censuring Beissel, saying among other things that his name contained the number 666 of the beast of the Apocalypse, and that he had received something from all the planets—"from Mars his strength, from Venus his influence over women, and from Mercury his comedian tricks." Beissel became quite angry, and one of the results of the widening breach was a new press at Ephrata. The Weyrauchs Hügel is the largest and most important collection of the hymns of the Ephrata Cloister. Many of them were written there by Beissel and others, but unfortunately it is not possible, except in a few instances, to determine the authorship of particular hymns. Christina Hoehn, "a pious and God-fearing woman," who died an inmate of the Cloister at an advanced age, wrote those upon pages 465 and 456, beginning "Wenn mir das Creutz will machen Schmertzen," and "Ich dringe ein in Jesu Liebe." A MS. book, beautifully written and illuminated, in the possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, contains the music to which these hymns were sung.

A well-known New England collector who has since met with a sad fate, succeeded a few years ago in finding a copy of the Weyrauchs Hügel, for which he paid $40. Unfortunately, it lacked a title-page. Its owner, hearing of a gentleman living in the interior of Montgomery County, Pa., who would be more likely than any one else to be able to supply the omission, made him a visit and offered him $10 for the missing leaf. The gentleman referred to, with a tender sympathy for the plight of his antiquarian friend, went out to the Loon Hill Institution in Franklin County, and luckily found what was needed to complete the copy.

As the edition was small and the book was in common use for devotional purposes, it has become extremely scarce, nearly all of the few known copies being imperfect. For accounts of it see the Deutsche Pionier, vol. viii. page 47, and Dr. Seidensticker's paper on "Die Deutsch-Amerikanischer Incunabula," in the same volume, page 475.

A LIST OF THE ISSUES OF THE PRESS IN PENNSYLVANIA FROM 1685 TO 1734.

By CHARLES R. HILDEBURN.

Books and pamphlets which have come under the personal inspection of the compiler are marked with an asterisk. A few works mentioned in Haven's list and elsewhere as printed in Philadelphia, are printed in italics to indicate the present writer's doubt as to the correctness of these statements.

RULES.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from half-past eight o'clock A. M. until six o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced. He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member or subscriber,

Two Folios,	For Two Weeks,
Two Quartos,
Two Octavos, or
Four Duodecimos,

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member or subscriber, who shall hire one or more books shall first deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, ten cents a week for each volume, and no smaller sum, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Any person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (in addition to the hire when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share), ten cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled, and the deposit money, if any, shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VIII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

IX. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

X. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XI. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

XII. When any member or subscriber shall desire to take out any book or books, the value of which shall exceed that of his share, or the proportionate part of his subscription unexpired, the Librarian may require him to deposit a sum of money double that excess.

XIII. Books will be sent to members or subscribers, if desired, by book post, express, or local despatch, at their expense.

LIST OF THE MORE IMPORTANT BOOKS SINCE JANUARY, 1882.

NOTE.—The letter L signifies the Loganian Library, MS the Manuscript Department, and R the Ridgway Branch.

BI-CENTENNIAL READING.

By FREDERICK D. STONE,
Librarian of the Historical Society.

[For more convenient reference, the shelf number of the Library Company's copy of each work referred to is appended in a foot-note. The number is not repeated in cases where the title is given more than once.]

The history of Pennsylvania is so intimately connected with the history of the rise of the Society of Friends that no one can clearly understand the former who is not tolerably well acquainted with the latter. While such works as the 'Journal of George Fox,[1] Besse's 'Sufferings of the Quakers,'[2] Sewall's 'History of the Quakers,'[3] Barclay's 'Apology,'[4] and Bishop's 'New England Judged,'[5] must ever form the groundwork of what is written concerning the history of the Friends, most readers will find all the information they require in the excellent compilation by the late Dr. Charles Evans entitled 'Friends in the 17th Century,'[6] and in the first volume of Bowden's 'History of the Friends in America.'[7] For the treatment of Quakers in Massachusetts Dr. Ellis' discourse before the Lowell Institute entitled 'Treatment of Intruders and Dissentients by the Founders of Mass.' (see 'Lectures before Lowell Institute by Members of Mass. Hist. Soc.,'[8] Boston, 1869) should be consulted as well as chap. iii. by the same writer in 'Memorial History of Boston,'[9] vol. i., and the correspondence between him and Mr. Whittier (see 'Proceedings of Mass. Hist. Soc.'[10] vol. 18, pp. 357, 388, 394) regarding the accuracy of the poem entitled 'The King's Missive.'[11] If the interest of the reader is excited in the attempt that has been made to trace the origin of the Society to an earlier period than the preaching of Fox, he can consult with profit Barclay's 'Inner Life of the Religious Societies of the Commonwealth,'[12] and the review[13] of the same by Dr. Charles Evans. There are of course many pamphlets and tracts contemporaneous with the origin of the Society that possess much interest; the titles of these are given in Joseph Smith's 'Catalogue of Friends' Books,'13 and the same writer's 'Anti-Quakeriana,'[14] while many of the works are in the Philadelphia, Loganian, and Friends' Libraries of this city.

Early Accounts of the Country—Swedes and Dutch on the Delaware.

For accounts of the country before the arrival of Penn, writers upon New Netherlands can be consulted as well as the 'Description of the Province of New Albion,'[15] by Beauchamp Plantagenet, printed in 1648, and reprinted (from the Library Company's almost unique copy) in Force's 'Historical Tracts,'[16] vol. ii. The histories of New Sweden are, however, the most satisfactory, particularly those of Campanius and Acrelius. The former was published at Stockholm 1702,[17] and the essential portions of it, translated by Duponceau, are printed in 'Memoirs of Historical Society of Pa.,[18] vol. ii. Part I. The latter, printed at Stockholm 1759,[19] has been translated by Reynolds and forms vol. xi. of 'Memoirs of Hist. Soc. Penna.' Vincent's 'History of Delaware,'[20] Dr. Geo. Smith's 'History of Delaware County,'[21] Ferris's 'Early Settlements on the Delaware,'[22] Mickle's 'Old Gloucester,'[23] Clay's 'Annals of the Swedes,'[24] and vol. i. of 'Memoirs of Long Island Historical Society,'[25] containing the Journals of Dankers and Sluyter, 1679–80 (pages 167–256), can be consulted on the subject; while the 'Founding of New Sweden,' by Prof. Chas. T. Odhner, and translated by Prof. G. B. Keen ('Pa. Mag. of Hist. and Biography,'[26] vol. iii.) gives the best account of the origin of the Swedish movement to the Delaware.

Hazard's 'Annals of Pennsylvania,'[27] from 1609–1682, contains abstracts of nearly all of the important documents of this period, but others will be found in 'Documents relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York,'[28] particularly vol. xii., 'Pennsylvania Archives,'[29] 2d series, vols. 5th and 7th, and in the 'Breviat in case of Penn vs. Baltimore.'[30] The 'Duke of York's Laws'[31] (Harrisburg, 1879) and the 'Record of the Court at Upland' (Memoirs of Historical Society of Pa., vol. vii.) in part fill the gap until the arrival of Penn.

The most popular 'Life of William Penn'[32] is that by William Hepworth Dixon; but while it is written in a style that must delight the reader, it is unfortunately the fact that the authorities given by the author do not always bear out the statements he founds upon them. It is, however, only to the embellishments of the book that this criticism can be applied, and in the main points the narrative is correct. Dixon, however, while he appreciated Penn, failed to understand him, and occasionally attributes his actions to other motives than those consistent with his professions. In the chapter in which he speaks of the interest taken by Algernon Sidney in drafting the frame of government he is unquestionably wrong, as there can be no doubt that the letter on which the statement was founded was written to Henry Sidney, the brother of Algernon.

Janney's 'Life of Penn,'[33] although not so readable, is a far more trustworthy book, but it treats more of William Penn the Quaker than of William Penn the founder of Pennsylvania. Clarkson's 'Life of Penn'[34] (2 vols. 8vo.) is open to the same criticism, and while it possesses merits which have caused all later writers to follow it to a greater or less extent, it suffers from the disadvantage of having been written before many interesting letters that we now have were made public. The 'Life of Penn,'[35] by Rev. George E. Ellis, D.D., in Sparks' American Biography, 2d series, vol. xii., is an important and spirited production, the result of careful thought and study. The sketch of the life of Penn in 'Collection of the Works of William Penn'[36] (2 vols. fol., 1726) is the foundation of all that has been published concerning him, and having been written within eight years of his death, by his contemporary Joseph Besse, has great value. Of his collected works the edition of 1726 (2 vols. fol.) and that of 1721 (1 vol. royal fol.)[37] are generally considered the best, but they do not contain many of his writings relating to the settlement of Pennsylvania. The 'Life of Admiral Sir William Penn'[38] (London, 1833) contains some facts and letters regarding Penn which were new when the work appeared, but they have been included in the later biographies. A charming paper on the 'Private Life and Domestic Habits of William Penn,' by Joshua Francis Fisher, is in 'Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pa.,' vol. iii., Part II., and in the same volume, a 'Memoir of the Life of William Penn,' by Mr. Lawton, a contemporaneous writer, and 'Fragmen of an Apology for Himself, by William Penn,' two important and curious documents relating to his influence at court. The 'Penn and Logan Correspondence,' forming vols. ix. and x. of 'Memoirs of Historical Society of Pa.,' treats of his life in connection with Pennsylvania from 1700 to 1711, and in the first volume is an interesting paper regarding his descendants, entitled 'The Penn Family,' by the late John Jay Smith. In Mrs. Maria Webb's 'Fells of Swarthmore Hall,'[39] and 'Penns and the Penningtons,'[40] a delightful picture will be found of the circle in which Penn moved while a young man, in which he courted and won Gulielma Springett, his first wife, and in which his influence was strongly felt. It is a picture of domestic life among Friends of the higher class at a time when their numbers were comparatively few, and when their sufferings, willingly borne for the truth's sake, endeared them to one another. The paper, however, which probably gives the clearest insight into Penn's personal character, and which must remain as a monument to his memory, is the letter addressed to his wife and children[41] prior to his embarkation for America. Lord Jeffrey said of it: "There is something, we think, very touching and venerable in the affectionateness of its whole strain, and the patriarchal simplicity in which it is conceived, while the language appears to us to be one of the most beautiful specimens of that soft and mellow English which, with all its cumbersome volume, has, to our ear, a far richer and more pathetic sweetness than the epigrams and apophthegms of modern times." It will be found in Clarkson's 'Life of Penn,' vol. i. p. 311, and Janney's, p. 187. Macaulay's charges against Penn were answered by the Rt. Hon. William E. Forster in the Preface to an edition of Clarkson's 'Life of Penn,' published in London 1850. This article, revised by the author, was published in pamphlet form at Philadelphia the same year.[42] In 1849 Henry Fairbairn published in Philadelphia 'A Defence of William Penn,' etc. etc.,[43] and 'William Penn par L. Vulliemin,' appeared in Paris in 1855. The concluding chapter of Dixon's 'Life of Penn,' and chapter 22d of Janney's are devoted to the same subject. 'An Inquiry into the Evidence relating to the Charges brought by Lord Macaulay against William Penn,'[44] by John Paget, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, was published by Blackwood in 1858. 'La vie de Guillaume Penn . . . Par J. Marsillac,'[45] is a meritorious compilation, but its chief interest centres around its author, who styles himself 'Député extra-

The Grant and Settlement of Pennsylvania.

Hazard's 'Annals of Pennsylvania;' vol. i. of 'Colonial Records of Pennsylvania;[47] vol. i. 'Pennsylvania Archives;'[48] vol. i. of 'Votes of the Assembly[49] and Duke of York's Laws,' etc., are the most important collections of documents relating to the settlement of Penn's colony. The Royal Charter will be found in 'Hazard's Annals,' p. 488, 'Votes of Assembly,' vol. i. p. xviii., 'Col. Records,' vol. i. (1st Ed.) p. ix. (2d Ed.) p. 17. It is also given in fac-simile as an Appendix to vol. vii. 2d Series of 'Pa. Archives,' and is in 'Duke of York's Laws' in same shape as well as being printed in that volume on p. 81. The paper known as 'Certain Conditions or Concessions,' agreed upon between the purchasers of land and Penn, July 11, 1681, will be found in 'Hazard's Annals,' p. 516, 'Col. Records,' vol. i. (1st Ed.) p. xviii. (2d Ed.) p. 26, and 'Votes of Assembly,' vol. i. p. xxiv. Penn's instructions to his Commissioners, Crispin, Bezar and Allen, are printed in 'Hazard's Annals,' p. 527, and 'Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pa.' vol. ii., Part I. p. 213. The original is in the Hist. Soc. of Penna. His Instructions to the Fourth Commissioner, William Haige, are in 'Hazard,' p. 637. 'The Frame of Government and Laws agreed upon in England,' May 5, 1682, were printed at the time, and a copy of the original edition is in the Historical Society of Pa. They are also in 'Hazard's Annals,' p. 558, 'Col. Records,' vol. i. (1st Ed.) p. xxi. (2d Ed.) p. 29, 'Votes of Assembly,' vol. i. p. xxvii., and 'Duke of York's Laws,' p. 91. The 'Frames' of 1683 and of 1696 will be found in 'Col. Records,' vol. i. (1st Ed.) p. xxxiv. and xli. (2d Ed.) p. 42 and 48, and 'Duke of York's Laws,' p. 155 and 245. This last volume contains as well the Laws down to 1700. It also contains a compilation of the Laws and Ordinances establishing the Courts of Judicature of Penna., with an introduction by Staughton George.

Contemporaneous Tracts.

In 1681, soon after he had received his grant, Penn issued an account of his Province, gathered from such sources as he considered reliable. The principal portions of this are given in 'Hazard's Annals,' p. 505. It was reprinted at Rotterdam and Amsterdam in Dutch and German; a copy of the Amsterdam edition is in the

Loganian Library.49. He subsequently issued 'Information and Directions to such persons as are inclined to America, more Especially Those related to the Province of Pennsylvania;' reprinted in 'Penna. Magazine of History and Biography,' vol. iv. p. 329. 'The Articles, Settlements and Officers of the Free Society of Traders,' etc. etc. appeared in 1692. It is reprinted from the Hist. Society's copy, in Pa. Magazine of Hist. and Biog., vol. v. p. 37. The Society was formed to promote the development of the colony. For further accounts of it see 'Hazard's Annals.' In 1683 Philip Ford published a 'Vindication of William Penn,' which contains abstracts of the first letters written from Pennsylvania by Penn. A copy of this is in the British Museum, and is reprinted in vol. vi. of 'Penna. Mag. of History and Biography,' p. 175. In 1683 'Penn's letter to the Free Society of Traders'[50] appeared. It was written that year after he had had ample time and experience to form an opinion of his Province. It is the most important of all the series of Contemporaneous publications, and passed through several editions. Copies of two of these (printed in 1683) are in the Historical Society, as well as a reprint in Dutch, which appeared in Amsterdam in 1684, containing in addition a letter from Thomas Paschall. It was also printed in French, in an abridged form at the Hague, in a little book entitled 'Recueil de Diverses Pièces, concernant la Pensylvanie.' This edition also contains Paschall's letter and has particular value, as its introduction was written by Benjamin Furley, Penn's agent at Rotterdam. The rarest of the London editions, with the list of purchasers referred to by the numbers on the map of Philadelphia which accompanies it, has been lately reprinted by Coleman,[51] of London. The student will find it in 'Proud's Penna.' vol. i. p. 246, 'Hazard's Register of Pa.,' vol. i. p. 433, and in collected works of Penn (Fol. 1771), p. 606. Next in order and importance is Penn's 'Further Account of Pennsylvania,' 1685. Two editions of this are in the Historical Society of Pa. It was in part used by Westcott in his 'History of Philadelphia' (chap. 31), but has, we believe, never been reprinted in full. 'Good Order Established in Pennsylvania & New Jersey in America.[52] By Thomas Budd, printed in 1685 and reprinted in 1865 with notes by Edward Armstrong ('Gowan's Bibliotheca Americana,' No. 4) is another important contribution to the subject. 'A Letter from Dr. More with passages out of several Letters from persons of good credit,' regarding Pennsylvania in 1687, is reprinted in 'Penna. Magazine of History and Biography,' vol. iv. p. 445, and in same volume, p. 189, 'Letters and Abstract of Letters from Pennsylvania 1691.' The original edition of the latter is in the Historical Society.

In 1692 Frame's poetical description of the province appeared. It bears the following title: 'A Short Description of Pennsilvania, Or, A Relation What things are known, enjoyed and like to be discovered in the said Province,'[53] etc. etc. By Richard Frame. Little is known of the author. It is said he was a teacher in the Friends' School of Philadelphia. He was certainly a resident of Pennsylvania, and the first of her citizens to give his thoughts to the public in the form of verse. The pamphlet was a colonial production. It appeared on paper probably made here, and was printed by William Bradford, the first printer of the middle colonies. But one copy of this rare tract is known to have survived, and it is preserved in the Phila. Library. A small edition in fac-simile was printed in 1867.[54] Soon after the appearance of Frame's verses the poetic fever seized upon John Holme, and he wrote 'A true relation of the Flourishing State of Pennsylvania.' The poetic taste of the community was either satiated with the effort of Frame, or Holme shrunk from the honors of authorship, for his poem did not see the light in type until printed by the Historical Society in the 13th number of its Bulletin in 1847.

In 1698 Gabriel Thomas, who resided here about fifteen years, printed in London 'An Historical and Geographical Account of the Province and Country of Pennsylvania and of West New Jersey.'[55] This was lithographed in fac-simile in 1848 at New York for Henry Austin Brady, Esq. In 1700 Francis Daniel Pastorius published at Frankford, 'Umständige Geographische Beschreibung der zu allerletz erfundenen Provintz Pensylvaniæ,'[56] portions of which were translated by Lewis H. Weiss and printed in vol. iv. Part ii. p. 83 of 'Memoirs of Historical Society of Pennsylvania.' Another publication called forth by the German emigration is: 'Curieuse Nachricht von Pennsylvania . . . welche auf Begehren guter Freunde über vorgelegte 103 Fragen bey seiner Abreiss aus Teuschland nach obigem Lande Anno 1700 ertheilet Daniel Falknern. Franckfurt, 1702.'[57] The accounts of Pennsylvania given in Oldmixon's 'British Empire in America,'[58] although not coming strictly under this head, should be consulted with the contemporaneous publications. The author was acquainted with Penn, and says that he obtained some of his information from him. Both editions of the work should be consulted, that of 1708 and that of 1741, as the accounts differ.

Histories.

The first historian of Pennsylvania was Samuel Smith, author of the well-known 'History of New Jersey;' but his work, up to the present time, has not appeared in a complete form. His manuscript is in the Historical Society of New Jersey, and what appears to be a duplicate of the Pennsylvania portion is in the Hist. Soc. of Pa. Hazard printed the latter in his 'Register of Pennsylvania,' vols. 6 and 7.

'Proud's History of Pennsylvania'[59] has always enjoyed a high reputation, but no more than its merits entitle it to. In its preparation the manuscripts of Smith's History were used, and extracts from a number of letters and pamphlets that have since been printed in full were given. Nevertheless there is much in it that cannot be found elsewhere, and the care that was taken in its preparation is so evident that its statements can be accepted with confidence.

The second volume of Bowden's 'History of Friends in America' is the best Quaker history of Pennsylvania that has appeared. Professor Ebeling's volume on Pennsylvania in his 'Erdbeschreibung und Geschichte von America,'[60] Hamburg, 1793–9 in 5 vols. is another valuable contribution. Portions of it, translated by Duponceau, will be found in Hazard's 'Register of Penna.,' vol. i. pp. 340, 353, 369, 385, 401.

Gordon's 'History of Pennsylvania,'[61] Phila. 1829, brings the history of the colony down to the Declaration of Independence, and that part which treats of the 18th century is the best we have on the subject. The work has never enjoyed much popularity. Its style is rather labored, and there is a tone of antagonism to Penn in some of its chapters which does not rise to the level of impartiality. In connection with this part of it an essay by Job R. Tyson can be read, entitled 'Examination of the various charges brought by historians against William Penn both as a man and as political governor.'[62] It will be found in 'Memoirs of Historical Society of Pennsylvania,' vol. ii. Part II. p. 127.

Sherman Day's 'Historical Collections of the State of Pennsylvania,'[63] 1844, and the 'History of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,'[64] by Wm. H. Egle, M.D. (Harrisburg, 1876), both give the history of the State down to the time of their respective publication. In them the histories of the counties are treated in separate chapters; general histories of the State being given in each work as introductory chapters.

Bancroft's chapters on the Quakers in the United States and Pennsylvania (see Centenary edition of his 'History,'[65] chaps. 13 and 14, 8vo. Edition,[66] chap. 16) are excellent. Graham's 'Colonial Hist. of the U. S.[67] (vol. 2, book vii., chap. i. of Phila. Ed., 4 vols. 8vo., 1845) is less flattering in the estimate given of Penn and his followers, although far from unappreciative of their efforts. In 'Watson's Annals of Philadelphia,'[68] vol. i. a number of facts connected with the settlement will be found. Westcott's 'History of Philadelphia'[69] should also be consulted. Pasted slips of this last, cut from the 'Sunday Dispatch,' are in the Philadelphia Library and the Historical Society. 'An Historical Review of the Constitution and Government of Pennsylvania from its Origin,'[70] etc. etc., published in London, 1759, and attributed to Franklin, will be found in the 3d volume of his works printed in Philadelphia, and in the 3d vol. of Sparks'[71] edition. While it contains little that is connected with the history of the settlement of Pennsylvania, it is a severe review of the policy of the Proprietary government, and the attempt is made to trace some of the alleged abuses of power back to the foundation of the colony.

Landing of Penn.

In 1824 a Society was formed for the "commemoration of the landing of William Penn." Its first meeting was held on Nov. 4th in the house in which he once lived in Letitia Court. An address was delivered by Peter S. Duponceau, and the eighteen members of the society dined together. In selecting the day to be celebrated, the society was guided by the passage in Penn's letter to the Lords of Plantation, dated August, 1683, in which he states that he arrived on "the 24th of Oct. last." Adding ten days to this date to correct the error in computing time by the Julian calendar, which was in vogue when Penn landed, Nov. 4th, was decided to be the anniversary. The next year, however, the Society celebrated the 24th of Oct., and continued to meet on that day until 1836, the last year that we are able to trace the existence of the organization.

Subsequent investigations have shown that Penn did not arrive before Newcastle until Oct. 27th (see 'Newcastle Court Records,' Hazard's 'Annals of Pa.,' p. 596), and did not land until the follow ing day. It is probable, therefore, that Penn dated his arrival from the time he came in sight of land or passed the Capes of Delaware. The first evidences we have of his being within the bounds of the present State of Pennsylvania, are letters dated Upland, Oct. 29, and this day, allowing ten days for the change of time, bringing it to Nov. 8th, is the one that it is customary to celebrate as the anniversary of his landing. The most important addresses delivered before the Society were those of 'Duponceau'[72] in 1824; 'Charles J. Ingersoll,'[73] 1825; 'Thomas I. Wharton,'[74] 1826; 'James N. Barker,'[75] 1827; 'Duponceau'[76] in 1832 (on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the landing), and 'Job R. Tyson'[77] in 1836. The address of Mr. Barker, entitled 'Primitive Settlements on the Delaware,' is the most valuable of the Series.

On November 8th, 1851, Edward Armstrong[78] delivered before the Hist. Soc. of Pa. at Chester, an able 'Address' which contains nearly all that is known regarding the landing of Penn. In it will be found the names of his fellow-passengers on the Welcome; but a more extensive list by the same writer is given in the Appendix to the 2d Ed. of vol. i. 'Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pa.' The 172d anniversary of the landing was celebrated by the Historical Society in 1852. An 'Address' was delivered before the members by Robert T. Conrad,[79] and at a dinner which followed a number of excellent speeches were made. The entire proceedings have been published.

Essays, etc., on Special Subjects.

The early history of Pennsylvania is treated in a 'Discourse' before the Historical Society in 1832 (see Hazard's 'Register of Pa.,' vol. xi. p. 193), by Peter McCall.

Penn's treaty with the Indians was the subject of a report made to the Historical Society by Peter S. Duponceau and Joshua Francis Fisher. It will be found in the 'Memoirs of the Society,' vol. iii. Part II. p. 141. While this report has been followed by historians generally, the subject is one that is open to further investigation. In it the opinion is expressed that the treaty which tradition says Penn held at Shackamaxon was not one for the purchase of land, but was a treaty of amity and friendship, and was held in November, 1682. From this Mr. Westcott dissents. "There is no evidence," he writes, "that a treaty of peace or of purchase of lands ever was held under the great elm tree at Shackamaxon in 1682 by William Penn" (see 'History of Philadelphia,' chapter 22d). In connection with this subject Mr. John F. Watson's paper (see vol. iii. Part II. p. 129, 'Memoirs of the Historical Society of Penna.') on the 'Indian Treaty for lands now the site of Philadelphia,' etc., should be read, as well as 'Memoir of the Locality of the Great Treaty between William Penn and the Indians 1682,' by Roberts Vaux (see 'Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pa.' vol. i. Part I. p. 79; 2d Ed. p. 87). The proceedings of the Historical Society upon the occasion of the presentation of a belt of wampum, by Granville John Penn, which is said to have been given to William Penn by the Indians at the treaty at Shackamaxon will be found in 'Memoirs of the Society,' vol. vi. p. 205.

'The History, Manners and Customs of the Indian Nations who once inhabited Pennsylvania,'[80] etc. etc., by Heckewelder, was published by the American Philosophical Society in 1819 (see 'Transactions of Historical and Literary Committee of that Society).' It was reprinted by the Historical Society, with notes by Rev. William C. Reichel in 1876, and forms vol. xii. of its Memoirs. Notices of the reviews and defences of this volume will be found in 'Allibone's Dictionary.'[81]

A 'Memoir of the Controversy between Penn and Lord Baltimore respecting the boundaries of Pennsylvania and Maryland,' by James Dunlop, is in 'Memoirs of Historical Society,' vol. i. p. 161, 2d Ed. p. 163. The same object is further treated in 'Latrobe's history of Mason and Dixon's Line,'[82] 1855, James Veech's 'Mason and Dixon's Line, a history (Pittsburgh, 1857),'[83] and 'Col. Graham's report on Mason and Dixon's Line,' 1850.[84] The Penn family copy of the rare original 'Breviate,'[85] John Penn, Thomas Penn, and Richard Penn, Esqs., Plaintiffs; Charles Calvert, Esq., Lord Baltimore, Defendants, was presented by Granville John Penn to the Library Company, and is valuable for its maps and for the voluminous evidence. For documents in the case see Pa. Archives, 2d series, vol. vii.

The most important contributions to the Legal History of the early days of the colony, are Peter McCall's 'Address before the Law Academy,'[86] 1838: An address before the Historical Society on 'The Courts of Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Century,'[87] by Lawrence Lewis, Jr.' (see 'Penna. Mag. of Hist. and Biography,' vol. v. p. 141): a lecture before the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, Oct. 3, 1881, by William Henry Rawle, Esq.,

Nead (see 'Duke of York's Laws,' p. 411), and 'An Address96 by Hon. Craig Biddle on the occasion of the Presentation of the Penn Papers to the Historical Society of Penna.,' are valuable contributions to State History.

Dr. George Smith's 'History of Delaware County,'[97] General W. W. H. Davis' 'History of Bucks County,'[98] and Futhey and Cope's 'History of Chester County'[99] are the best of their respective locations.

In preparing the foregoing, no attempt has been made to give a complete list of all that has been written regarding the settlement of Pennsylvania. We have not referred to works of such rarity as 'The Planter's Speech to his Neighbours, etc. etc.,' the introduction of which is given in Proud's Pa. (vol. i. p. 226), as we are unable to direct the student to a copy; nor have we given all the editions of the contemporaneous Tracts printed elsewhere than in England, or swelled the article by introducing the titles of papers which have appeared in popular magazines. For the latter the reader is referred to the new edition of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature, which will appear in a short time. The only object has been to assist those interested in it by pointing out the most important contributions that have been made to the literature of the subject from time to time, and in what form the information is most accessible.

RULES.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from half-past eight o'clock A. M. until six o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced. He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member or subscriber,

Two Folios, Two Quartos, Two Octavos, or Four Duodecimos,	For Two Weeks,

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member or subscriber, who shall hire one or more books shall first deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, ten cents a week for each volume, and no smaller sum, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Any person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (in addition to the hire when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share), ten cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled, and the deposit money, if any, shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VIII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

IX. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

X. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XI. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

XII. When any member or subscriber shall desire to take out any book or books, the value of which shall exceed that of his share, or the proportionate part of his subscription unexpired, the Librarian may require him to deposit a sum of money double that excess.

XIII. Books will be sent to members or subscribers, if desired, by book post, express, or local despatch, at their expense.

The above valuable donation, necessarily gathered at great expense of time and money, adds 298 titles to those of the Library Co.'s collection, besides duplicates: viz., 4 of Alabama, 29 of Canada and British America, 16 of California, 1 of Connecticut, 1 of Delaware, 2 of Georgia, 3 of Illinois, 3 of Indiana, 4 of Iowa, 3 of Kansas, 5 of Kentucky, 2 of Louisiana, 9 of Maine, 17 of Maryland, 10 of Massachusetts, 8 of Michigan, 11 of Minnesota, 1 of Mississippi, 9 of Missouri, 4 of New Hampshire, 2 of New Jersey, 16 of New York, 4 of N. Carolina, 10 of Ohio, 7 of Pennsylvania, 5 of S. Carolina, 2 of Tennessee, 3 of Texas, 1 of Vermont, 2 of Virginia, 2 of West Virginia, 11 of Wisconsin, and 90 of the U. S. Government. In addition, Prof. Prime has kindly given the Library Co., for use in exchange, the remnant of his Catalogue of Gelogical Reports.

The earliest American geological Report appears to be A geological survey of the County of Albany, taken under the direction of the Agricultural Society of the County. [By A. Eaton and T. Romeyn Beck.] n. p. 1820. (8vo. pp. 56.)

The first State to order a scientific survey of its territory was N. Carolina, and the earliest State Geological Report is Report on the Geology of North Carolina, conducted under the direction of the Board of Agriculture. Part I. By Denison Olmstead. November, 1824. (12mo. pp. 44.) Her example was followed by South Carolina (1826), and subsequently by Massachusetts (1832), Maryland (1834), New Jersey (1835), Tennessee (1835), Georgia (1836), New York (1836), Ohio (1836), Pennsylvania (1836), Virginia (1836), Connecticut (1837), Maine (1837), Michigan (1838), Vermont (1838), Delaware (1839), Indiana (1839), Kentucky (1839), New Brunswick (1839), Newfoundland (1839), Rhode Island (1840), New Hampshire (1841), Canada (1845), Nova Scotia (1846), Alabama (1850), Minnesota (1850), Wisconsin (1850), Illinois (1853), Mississippi (1854), Missouri (1855), California (1856), Arkansas (1858), Iowa (1858), Texas (1859), Kansas (1865), Louisiana (1869), West Virginia (1870), and Oregon (1874). Of these, the most voluminous—setting aside Canada and the U. States—are the Geological Reports of Pennsylvania, and the rarest are those of Virginia.

The first Catalogue of Geological Reports of the U. States was prepared by Prof. O. C. Marsh, and published in the American Journal of Science and Arts for 1867, vol. xliii. 2d series (12 pp). In 1873, an official List of publications of the Geological Survey of Canada was published by Dawson Brothers, Montreal (8vo. pp. 7), and in 1879 a corrected list (pp. 22). In 1874, the Department of the Interior issued a Catalogue of the publications of the United States Geological Survey of the Territories; F. V. Hayden, Geologist in Charge (8vo. pp. 20). A second edition of this valuable list was issued in 1877 (pp. 38), and a third in 1879 (pp. 54). In connection with Hayden's Survey (Miscellaneous Publications No. 10), the U. S. government also issued, in 1878, a Bibliography of N. A. Invertebrate Palæontology (8vo. pp 132). The Engineer Bureau U. S. A published, in 1876, a limited edition of its important List of publications exhibited at the Centennial Exhibition (8vo. 27 pp.), and in 1878, a List of Reports and Maps of the U. S. Geographical Surveys West of the 100th Meridian (8vo. pp. 36), prepared by Capt. George M. Wheeler, U. S. A. Finally, in 1879, Frederick Prime, Jr., Assistant Geologist of Pennsylvania, contributed to vol. 7 of the Transactions of the American Institute of Mining Engineers his admirable "Catalogue of Official Reports upon Geological Surveys of the U States and Territories, and of British North America" (8vo. pp. 71), followed by Supplement I. (pp. 13), and Supplement II. (pp. 12). This remains by far the best general check-list of American Geological Reports, but it is to be hoped that a still more complete catalogue will be available for the collector by the completion of Chapter IV. of Prof. J. P. Lesley's Historical Sketch of Geological Explorations of Pennsylvania and other States. Harrisburg, published by the Board of Commissioners for the Second Geological Survey, 1876.

52000, O. Geological Reports and Maps, 112 vols., viz.: Canada (11), Colorado (1), Indiana (1), Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota (17 reports on their lead mines made to U. S. Government), Kansas (2), Kentucky (5), Maryland (7), Michigan (2), Minnesota (2), Missouri (21 Reports of State University), Nevada (3), New Jersey (8), New York

(1), North Carolina (4), Ohio (4), Pennsylvania (6), Tennessee (4), and U. States (12). v. p. v. d.

(Gift of Prof. W. H. B. Thomas.)

Seventeen of the above are not included in Professor Prime's Bibliography. None of them are duplicates, either of those presented by him—as noted above—or of the official geological reports already belonging to the Library Co. These accessions bring up the total of the Company's separate Reports on the geology of the several States and of the U. States to 790, leaving, however, 247 to make its collection complete.

(Gift of Prof. W. H. B. Thomas.)

The theory that the earth is hollow was entertained by some of the Arabian geographers of the 11th and 12th centuries (Daly's Address before the Am. Geographical Society, p. 22), but it was independently arrived at by Capt. John Cleves Symmes, whose first circular was issued in St. Louis in 1818. For a sketch of his life, and a resumé of the literature of the subject, see Thomson's Bibliography of the State of Ohio (p 223). To the titles therein contained may properly be added: Cosmogony: or thoughts on philosophy. By John Merrill, author of a series of lectures on philosophy. East Canaan, N. H., 1860 (8vo, pp. 43) In this tract the author tries to show that "This earth is not a solid sphere, but a hollow world, open at the northern extremities, admitting heat, light, air, and space inside; there are continents and oceans within as navigable as those outside." Mr. Merrill calls this a new theory, and makes no reference to previous works sustaining it. More recently, the "Symmes theory of the earth" was explained and advocated in an article by Mr. P. Clark in the Atlantic Monthly for April, 1873; and a portrait of its originator, together with a representation of "Symmes' Hole, as it would appear to a lunarian with a telescope," appeared in Harper's Magazine for Oct. 1882. In the mean time there was issued in 1875, at Chicago, by Messrs. Sherman and Lyon, a work—professedly by inspiration—advocating a similar notion, and entitled The Hollow Globe. (12mo. pp. 455.)

5198, F. 10. Headquarters, Phila, Dec. 3, 1776.

The General has been informed that some weak or wicked Men have maliciously reported, that it is the Design and Wish of the Officers and Men of the Continental Army, to burn and destroy the City of Philadelphia. To counteract such a false and scandalous Report, he thinks it necessary to inform the Inhabitants who propose to remain in the City, that he has received positive Orders from the Honourable Continental Congress, and from his Excellency General WASHINGTON, to secure and protect the City of Philadelphia against all Invaders and Enemies. The General will consider every Attempt to burn the City of Philadelphia as a Crime of the blackest Dye, and will, without ceremony, punish capitally any Incendiary who shall have the Hardiness and Cruelty to attempt it.

The General commands all able bodied Men in the City of Philadelphia, who are not conscientiously scrupulous against bearing Arms, and who have not been known heretofore to entertain such scruples, to appear in the State-House Yard To-morrow Morning at 10 o'Clock, with their Arms and Accoutrements. This Order must be complied with: the General being resolutely determined that no Person shall remain in this City an idle Spectator of the present Contest, who has it in his power to Injure the American Cause, or who may refuse to lend his Aid to the Support of it, Persons under conscientious scruples, as before mentioned, only Excepted . . . . (Signed) ISRAEL PUTNAM, Major-General. (Broadside.)

MS. Copy of a letter to John Adams, beginning :—

Dear Old Friend: The 4th of July has been celebrated in Philada. in the manner I expected. The military men, and particularly one of them, ran away with all the glory of the day. Scarcely a word was said of the solicitude and labours, fears, and sorrows, and sleepless nights of the men who projected, proposed, defended, and subscribed the declaration of independence. Do you recollect your memorable Speech upon the day on which the votes were taken? Do you recollect the pensive, and awfull silence which pervaded the house when we were called up one after another, to the table of the President of Congress, to subscribe what was believed by many at that time to be our death warrants? The silence and the gloom of the morning were interrupted I well recollect only for a moment by Col. Harrison of Virginia who said to Mr. Gerry at the table: "I shall have a great advantage over you, Mr. Gerry, when we are all hung for what we are now doing. From the size and weight of my body, I shall die in a few minutes, but from the lightness of your body, you will dance in the air an hour or two before you are dead." This speech procured a transient smile, but it was soon succeeded by the solemnity with which the business was conducted . . . . . .

A LIST OF THE ISSUES OF THE PRESS IN PENNSYLVANIA FROM 1735 TO 1759.

By CHARLES R. HILDEBURN.

Books and pamphlets which have come under the personal inspection of the compiler are marked with an asterisk. A few works mentioned in Haven's list and elsewhere as printed in Philadelphia, are printed in italics to indicate the present writer's doubt as to the correctness of these statements. The German titles, for which the compiler is indebted to Mr. S. W. Pennypacker, are mostly abridged from those published by Prof. Seidensticker, in the Deutsche Pioneer.

RULES.

I. All persons are allowed to consult the books in the room without charge during Library hours.

II. The Librarian shall attend at the Library every day (Sunday excepted) from half-past eight o'clock A. M. until six o'clock P. M. He shall enter in the catalogue kept at the Library, such books as may be purchased or added to the Library; label and number the same, as well as all others from which the label or number may be torn off or defaced. He shall also replace the books on the shelves, as they are brought in, as soon as he conveniently can, first having examined whether they are free from damage.

III. He shall lend to any member or subscriber,

Two Folios,	For Two Weeks,
Two Quartos,
Two Octavos, or
Four Duodecimos,

and no greater number, unless on hire, or so connected as to be otherwise useless. At the expiration of the time specified (unless application has been made by another member for the same books, and the Librarian requested to take a memorandum thereof) the borrower may, on producing the books to the Librarian, renew the same for the like time.

IV. Every person, not being a member or subscriber, who shall hire one or more books shall first deposit, as security, in the hands of the Librarian, double the value of such book or books; but if the book or books should belong to a set, then such person shall deposit treble the value of the volume or volumes which he shall so take out.

V. Every person, who shall take out a book or books on hire, shall pay, for the use of the Library, ten cents a week for each volume, and no smaller sum, although the book may be returned within the week.

VI. Any person, who shall neglect to return the book or books, within the time specified in the third rule, shall for such neglect, pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Library (in addition to the hire when the book is not taken out by virtue of a share), ten cents per week; and if not returned, undefaced, within one month from the expiration of the time limited, the fine and hire accruing thereupon shall be doubled, and the deposit money, if any, shall be forfeited to the Company.

VII. No person from whom any hire or forfeiture is due, or who hath damaged any book, shall be permitted to have another book till satisfaction be made.

VIII. The Librarian is to conform to the instructions of the Directors with regard to such books as, from their scarcity and value, are to be let out only on certain conditions, or not at all.

IX. No person, whether a member or not, is to lend the book or books he borrows to any person out of his dwelling-house.

X. No book shall be lent on the share of a deceased member, unless authorized by the executors or administrators of such deceased member.

XI. Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

XII. When any member or subscriber shall desire to take out any book or books, the value of which shall exceed that of his share, or the proportionate part of his subscription unexpired, the Librarian may require him to deposit a sum of money double that excess.

XIII. Books will be sent to members or subscribers, if desired, by book post, express, or local despatch, at their expense.

This occasion is taken to call attention to some other illustrated works relating to Paris in the Library. In the following list—which is chronologically arranged—only FOLIO AND QUARTO BOOKS OF ENGRAVINGS are included.

672, F. Description générale de l'hostel royal des invalids, establi par Louis le grand, dans le plaine de Grenelle, près de Paris. P. 1683

700, F. Histoire de l'abbaye royale de Saint Denys. Par Michel Felibien. P. 1706

1143, F., etc. Plans de Paris en 1713, 1717, 1722, 1742, 1754, 1762, 1765, 1777, 1782, 1786, 1800, 1802, 1803, 1804, 1806, 1808, 1812, 1813, 1814, 1815, 1817, 1818, 1820, 1825, 1833, 1838, 1842, 1845 (three), 1846, 1850, 1854, 1857, 1867, 1870, 1871, 1873. Paris, v. d.

672, F. Annales de la monarchie Françoise, où l'on trouve . . . les medailles authentiques qui ont été frappées sous les differens règnes. L. Amsterdam, 1724

Many of these medals represent royal residences, parks, etc., in Paris and its vicinity.

711, F. Les monumens de la monarchie Françoise, avec les figures de chaque règne. Par le R. P. Dom. Bernard de MONTFAUCON. 5 vols. R. P. 1729

648, F. Collection complète des tableaux historiques de la Revolution Française. 2 vols. L. P. An vi. (1798)

Le texte des 80 premiers tableaux, qui parut d'abord [1798], étant rédigé dans le sens revolutionnaire le plus exagéré, on l'a réimprimé [1804] avec des adoucissements qui le rendent un peu plus supportable. C'est une chose curieux d'avoir l'un et l'autre.—Brunet.

1215, F. Collection complète des tableaux historiques de la Revolution Française, ouvrage orné de 222 gravures. 3 tomes. P. 1804

Les vues de Paris tiennent une place importante, au moment même où l'ancien aspect de la ville allait être le plus sensiblement modifié.—Jules Cousin.

1622, Q. Picturesque views of public edifices in Paris, aquatinted by Mr. Rosenberg. L. 1814

2909, Q. Paris and its environs. Two hundred picturesque views. L. 1831

1153, F. Hotel de ville de Paris, mesuré, dessiné, gravée et publié par Victor Calliut, architecte. Avec un histoire de ce monument et des recherches sur le gouvernement municipal de Paris, per Le Roux de Lincy. L. P. 1844

This building, burnt by the Commune on the night of the 25th May, 1870, is now replaced by another on the same site, inaugurated in 1882. The valuable archives contained in the Hôtel de Ville, including 15 to 20,000 documents relating to the city of Paris, all of which perished in the flames, are described in Le Livre, vol. 1, pp. 169–178.

3037, Q. Monuments anciens et modernes, par Jules Gailhabaud. 4 tomes. P. 1850

3508, Q. 1. Plan général du Père-Lachaise, indiquant l'emplacement de toutes les concessions perpetuelles. P. 1855

1052, F. Statistique monumental de Paris. (152 engravings, some colored.) L. P. circa 1855

This work forms part of the third series of the Collection des documents inédits sur l'histoire de France, published by the French Government. The text by Lenoir is wanting.

1110, F. L'architecture privée aux XIX*me* siècle sous Napoléon III. Nouvelles maisons de Paris et ses environs, par M. César Daly. 3 tomes. L. P. 1864

1187, F. Les Promenades de Paris—Bois de Boulogne—Bois de Vincennes — Parcs — Squares — Boulevards. Par A. Aphaud. Dessins de E. Hochereau. L. P. 1868

1710, F. Les merveilles de l'Exposition universelle de 1867. Par Jules Mesnard. Texte par Francis Aubert. Paris, 1869

3656, Q. L'Histoire de France racontée a mes petits enfants. Par M. Guizot. Gravures dessinées sur bois. 5 vols. P. 1875

3371, Q. Paul Lacroix. Institutions, usages, et costumes. France, 1700–1789. Chromolithographs. P. 1875

5008, F. L'Exposition de Paris. Edition enrichée de vues, par les meillures artistes. R. P. 1878

3535, Q. P. Lacroix. Lettres, Sciences et Arts. France, 1700–1789. P. 1878

3747, Q. P. Lacroix. Institutions, usages, et costumes. France, 1590–1700. P. 1880

3740, Q. The famous parks and gardens of the world described and illustrated. L. 1880

10190, Q. P. Lacroix. Lettres, sciences, et arts. France, 1590–1700. R. P. 1882

The three illustrated works of Lacroix (Bibliophile Jacob), on the Middle Ages, also contain many plates relating to the capital of France. See, in addition, the word PARIS in the printed and card catalogues, the most important recent books in octavo and duodecimo being Robinson's Parks, promenades, and gardens of Paris, and the encyclopedic works of Du Camp and Viollet-le-duc. Brunet, in the Table méthodique of his Manuel, devotes a section to Paris et residences royales; and Lorenz, in his Catalogue général (vol. 8, pp. 159–165), gives the titles of all works relating to the city of Paris published in France between 1840 and 1875. See also Franklin's Les sources de l'histoire de France and J. Lelong's Bibliothèque historique de la France In the matter of pictorial illustrations, the elaborate work which heads this list—Paris à travers les ages—points out the most important works, published and unpublished.

AMERICANA (arranged chronologically).

Sabin's reprint, quarto series, No. 10 (1865).

2252, Q. 3. NEW ENGLAND A DEGENERATE PLANT, who having forgot their former sufferings, and lost their ancient tenderness, are now become famous among the nations in bringing forth the fruits of cruelty, wherein they have far outstript their persecutors the Bishops, as by these their ensuing Laws you may plainly see. . . . The truth of which we are witnesses (who by their cruel hands have suffered), Iohn Rous, Iohn Copeland, Strangers, Samuel Shattock, Nicholas Phelps, Iosiah Southwick, Inhabitants. . . . pp. 20. R. London, 1659

2252, Q. 1. The heart of New England hardened through wickedness. By F. H. R. L. 1659

5209, F. 20. The Popish inquisition newly erected in New England, whereby their church is manifested to be a daughter of Mystery-Babylon, which did drink the blood of the Saints, who bears the express image of her mother, demonstrated by her fruits. Also their rulers to be in the Beast's power, upon whom the Whore rideth, manifest by their wicked compulsory laws against the Lamb and his followers, and their cruel and bloody practices against the dear servants of the Lord, who have deeply suffered by this hypocritical generation. Published by a lover of mercy and truth, and an enemy to envy and cruelty. F. H. (Francis Howgil). pp. 72. London, 1659

(Gift of Mrs. Patience H. Jenkins.)

The Library also has the folio edition (pp. 26) in Howgill's works.

Daniel Falckners Burgers und Pilgrims in Pennsylvania 193 Beantwortungen uff (sic) vorgelegte Fragen von guten Freunden (Map.) pp. 40–58.

L. Franckfurt und Leipzig, 1702

The first part of this tract is a translation of Gabriel Thomas' Pennsylvania, with a reproduction of his map, except that the dedication and conclusion of the original are omitted. In their stead either Falckner, the agent of the Frankfort Company, or, more probably, Pastorius, has appended explanatory foot-notes, and added a farewell paragraph. Then follows a separate title-page beginning Curieuse Nachricht, and in the succeeding pages are contained the Beantwortungen promised in the title-page of the Continuatio. The latter word seems to refer to Pastorius' Umständige Geographische Beschreibung, published in 1700, and a copy of which of the edition of 1704 is in the Loganian Library. The more important portions of Pastorius' work were translated by Mr. Lewis H. Weiss, and published in Vol. 4 of the Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania (1850), but this Continuatio has not yet been translated into English.

On p. 14 occurs a copy of the Earl of Buchan's letter to Gen. Washington sent inclosed in a box made of the oak that sheltered Sir William Wallace after the battle of Falkirk, to which is appended the following note in the Earl's handwriting: "This Box was recommitted to the Earl of Buchan by the last Will of the General, and delivered into his hands by Mr. Liston, the British Envoy at Millbourne, his villa near Edinburgh. Lord B. transferred it again to the U. S. to contain Prize medals of the General's bust to be distributed annually to the most learned and virtuous student in the University [intended to be] founded by the General in the U. S. It was sent by the hand of Dr. Chapman, of Philadelphia, who received it with form in the Assembly rooms at Edinburgh, in presence of the families of Hamilton, Buccleugh, Wemyss, and others. It was abstracted from Dr. Chapman on his way to Philadelphia, and is probably now in the possession of some Traitor to his country." See also Sparks' Writings of Washington, vol. x. p. 230. 12329, O. etc. U. States Congressional Documents, publications of Departments, etc. etc. 1324 vols. R. W. 1840–80

The Library Company already had in the Locust Street Building a good set of the public documents of the United States, including the journals and debates of Congress complete, and, for the earlier sessions of that body, both the original editions of the documents and the reprints; but there were some gaps, as appears on pages 1530, 1531, etc., of the printed catalogue. An absolutely perfect set, including all the departmental issues, does not exist anywhere; but it is hoped that when the above volumes (kindly presented by the Department of State) come to be examined, a set nearly perfect can be made up at the Philadelphia Library, leaving also many valuable duplicates for use at the Ridgway Branch.

2751, D. Manuale et processionale ad usum monasterii. pp. 309. L. n. p. circa 1400

A small and neatly written illuminated manuscript on vellum with ornamented initial letters and ancient music—canto fermo—containing services for the sick, the dying, and the dead, a rubric of 32 pp. Quando imminet processio, the penitential psalms, collects for special occasions, etc. etc. A specimen of Italian art.

7136, F. Missale Romanum. A folio illuminated missal on vellum, $19\frac{1}{2}$ X $14\frac{3}{4}$ in., beautifully written and in good preservation. Bound in leather and iron. L. circa 1400

1315, F. LIBER HORARUM, cum canticis.

L. n. p. circa 1350

A folio choir book in Latin, written on fine parchment (186 pp.) and bound in leather reinforced with iron bosses and edges. It contains the services for prime and tierce, and for vespers and compline throughout the ecclesiastical year—the other canonical hours being omitted—followed by hymns to the Blessed Virgin. The contractions—occurring at almost every other word—make it difficult to read. Though showing signs of use, it is in good preservation, the colors being bright and beautiful. The initial letters are illuminated, and there is one portrait. This book, which is chiefly remarkable for its extraordinary size—the pages measuring 24 × 15 in. and the smallest letters being more than half an inch long—was brought from Italy by Dr. Morris S. Wickersham. It has been thought worthy of being put in a glass case at the Ridgway Branch, as a noble example of Italian ecclesiastical art in the middle ages; and the following choice MSS. already belonging to the Company, and now arranged as nearly as possible in chronological order, are placed on either side of it.

A. Fragment of an Egyptian papyrus, purchased from a fellah at Thebes in 1857. The sarcophagus in which it was found was said to bear the cartouche of Osirtasen I. who (according to Wilkinson) lived in the year 2180 B. C.

B. A HEBREW ROLL OF THE PENTATEUCH, written on leather and accompanied by a certificate of Tischendorf that it is more than one thousand years old.

(Deposited by Dr. William Camac.)

C. BIBLIA SACRA, neatly written on the finest vellum, with rubricated initial letters, and said to be of the XIV. Century.

(Presented to Library Co. in 1768 by Dr. Geo. Vaux.)

D. A folio Book of Homilies in GREEK, plainly written on parchment. Age unknown.

(Presented to the Library Co. in 1799 by Henry Cox, Esq., of Ireland.)

E. A MS. ABYSSINIAN psalter and liturgy in Æthiopic; on parchment. Date unknown.

(Deposited by Dr. William Camac.)

F. An illuminated Choir Book on parchment. From the monastery of Vallambrosa, $10\frac{1}{2}$ X $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. Circa 1400

(Gift of Dr. Cleborne, U. S. N.)

G. PSALTERIUM, on vellum, $9\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ in., with illuminated initial letters and numerous miniatures. In the original binding of boards covered with black silk. The whole in perfect preservation, and a fine specimen of German art of the XIV. or XV. century.

H. A small MS. Illuminated Psalter of the XIV. or XV. century. Square 18mo.

I. HORÆ MARIÆ VIRGINIS. A MS. on vellum of 294 pp., (each 8 X $4\frac{3}{4}$ in) bound in gilt parchment, ornamented. Every page is richly illuminated and has delicate arabesque borders in colors and gold. There are ten exquisite full-page miniatures representing events in the life of the Blessed Virgin. The writing is apparently of the 15th century. On the fly leaf is scrawled Ces heures apartienne a son maitre qui net ni capucin ni prettre mais en cas de prendision Charles Thierry cet son non, 1732.

(Deposited by the late Hugh Davids, Esq.)

K. A DEED on parchment from WILLIAM PENN, dated 1681, to which is appended the Great Seal of the Proprietary Government. (In a frame.) S.

L. A MS. SIAMESE treatise on the smallpox, with illustrations. Written on pasteboard, folded.

(Gift of Dr. W. S. W. Ruschenberger.)

M. A richly illuminated MS ARABIC prayer book on polished vellum. (Deposited by Dr. William Camac.)

N. An illuminated Arabic MS. on polished parchment of part of the Koran, with a Commentary: the former neatly written in red letters, and the latter in black and gold.

(Deposited by Dr. William Camac.)

O. A MS. of the Book of Esther in Hebrew, written on fine parchment. About one hundred years old.

(Gift of Miss Rebecca Gratz.)

P. A MS. book of charms in the Burmese language, written on paper.

Q. A BURMESE book, neatly written on reeds. Modern.

A LIST OF THE ISSUES OF THE PRESS IN PENNSYLVANIA FROM 1760 TO 1769.

By CHARLES R. HILDEBURN.

Books and pamphlets which have come under the personal inspection of the compiler are marked with an asterisk. A few works mentioned in Haven's list and elsewhere as printed in Philadelphia, are printed in italics to indicate the present writer's doubt as to the correctness of these statements. The German titles, for which the compiler is indebted to Mr. S. W. Pennypacker, are mostly abridged from those published by Prof. Seidensticker, in the Deutsche Pioneer.

HISTORY.

31077, D. Alexander (Miss)—The story of Ida; Epitaph on an Etrurian tomb, by Francesca. Edited, with preface, by John Ruskin. Orpington, 1883

For some ten or twelve years Mr. Ruskin "has been asking every good writer whom he knew to write some part of what was exactly true in the greatest of all sciences, that of Humanity," but his petition has been unanswered. Here, however, in "The Story of Ida," is an absolutely and simply true record of a young Florentine girl's too short life. The frontispiece is a very beautiful engraving of Miss Alexander's drawing of Ida on her deathbed, and Mr. Ruskin is thus "able to show in the same book examples of the purest truth, both in history and picture . . . here is a real passage of human life, seen in the light that Heaven sent for it."—Pall Mall, June 15, 1883.

The Allen Chess Collection.

The chess collection of the late Professor George Allen has recently been purchased from his heirs by the Library Company. It comprises nearly nine hundred titles, besides two hundred and fifty autograph letters and fifty photographs and engravings of chess celebrities. The library is in excellent condition, and many of the books are fine examples of bookbinding.

The principal treatises upon the game are included in the collection, in the rarest as well as in the commoner editions. It includes copies of five of the first eight editions of Damiano, the earliest of which is of exceeding rarity. There is a copy of Ruy Lopez in the very rare original Spanish edition of 1561, one of the rare Italian translations of Tarsia, one of the first edition in French, and three others of later dates. Of Greco's treatise there are fourteen editions, among them the English version of 1656 and the first French one of 1669. There are copies of the scarce "Libro" of Gianutio and of all three editions of Salvio's works. The extremely rare Italian Carrera is also here, and is a copy of peculiar interest, Mr. Lewis having made from it his translation of the work. Of Ponziani there are eleven editions. Of Stamma the first and second, and two later editions in French, the scarce first edition in English, and Mr. Lewis's two subsequent ones, all the German editions, and the Italian one of Wunsch. Of Philidor there are seventeen copies in French, eleven in English, ten in German, one in Danish, three in Dutch, three in Spanish, and one in Russian; besides Pruen and Pohlman, two copies of Kindermann, nine of Pratt, and six of the "Easy Introduction;" as well as a MS. of six blindfold games not known to exist in duplicate. Among more modern authors there are collections, nearly complete, of the numerous works of Lewis, Walker, and Staunton, Jaenisch's chief productions, and Von Bilguer's "Handbuch" in all editions from 1843 to 1864.

The collection of Chess problems is especially fine, including among other works all the editions of "Les Stratagèmes des Echecs" in various languages.

In the "Automaton Chess-Player" Professor Allen took a lively interest, and his library contains a full collection in that relation.

Other full departments of the collection relate to the Knight's Leap, the History of Chess, the Worth of Chess, Chess Bibliography, and the Symbolical Aspect of Chess. It also contains, besides chess journals, a great number of cuttings from the chess columns of various papers.

In the belles-lettres of the game, poems, etc., relating to chess, the collection is very rich, containing twenty-two editions of Vida, Marino, Denham, Sindom, Jones, and many others.

A special room at the Ridgway Branch has been appropriated by the Directors for the Allen Collection, the books on chess already belonging to the Library Company being added to it. A chess table is provided for the use of students and amateurs.

MS. Dillwyn (W.)—Correspondence. 5 vols. R. 1770–1824

These papers, presented to the Manuscript Department by Mrs. Gulielma M. Howland, of Wilmington, Del., have been examined by Prof. McMasters, of the University of Penna., and at the librarian's request he has kindly contributed the following note respecting them:—

The Dillwyn Manuscripts consist of a series of delightful letters which during a period of fifty-four years passed between William Dillwyn and Susanna Emlen, his daughter. The father was living in London; the daughter was sometimes at Burlington, sometimes at Philadelphia, sometimes at places between the two. The letters begin at a time when Susanna was a child, and the thirteen States still colonies under the English crown, and, save when interrupted by the war for independence and the war of 1812, come down in unbroken sequence to 1824. In them are mingled in a most pleasing way politics and family affairs, town gossip and the current news of the day; scraps of information about famous men, and pictures of domestic life of the time. What was being done by the Society of Friends at Burlington; how feeble Doctor Franklin had become; what was thought of the Federal Convention of 1787, and how the people idolized the first President of the United States, are all put down by the youthful topographer. Now a description is given of a trip to New York, of the badness of the inns along the way, and the sights of the great city at the mouth of the Hudson. Again there is an account of the terrible times of '93 and '97 and '98, when the yellow fever swept off scores of Philadelphians every day. Now the subject is a Philadelphia home, the kind of furniture in use. Political pamphlets are noticed and sent to London. The impossibility of procuring folio letter-paper in Philadelphia is commented upon. The trouble of '98 with France, and later with England, are all passed in review. A correspondence so full of the details of the social life of the time cannot, perhaps, be found elsewhere.

MS. The Strepers Papers. R. v. p. 1683–1735

These MSS., a part of the collection presented by the heirs of John Jay Smith, deceased, have been examined by Samuel W. Pennypacker, Esq., who kindly contributes the following note:—

On the 10th of March, 1682, William Penn conveyed to Jan Strepers, a merchant of Kaldkirchen, a village in the neighborhood of Crefeld, in Germany, 5000 acres of land in Pennsylvania. Strepers sent his brother William and others over to settle upon it, and they were among the thirteen heads of families who arrived in Philadelphia October 6, 1683, and founded Germantown. In the right of this purchase Strepers obtained 275 acres at Germantown, 50 at Chestnut Hill, 275 at the Trappe, 4448 in Bucks County, 50 in the City Liberties, and three city lots. Some years later Jan and William Strepers entered into an agreement by the terms of which Jan retained an inheritance they had in common at Kaldkirchen, and William became entitled to the lands in Pennsylvania. Subsequently a large portion of these lands were purchased from William by James Logan. The validity of the conveyance to William was denied by the heirs of Jan in Germany, and in 1765 Peter Hendricks Strepers, fortified with powers of attorney from his relatives, came over to this country and began ejectment suits to recover the lands. A long and expensive contest resulted, which was finally settled by agreements between the parties. In the course of the struggle all of the correspondence and other papers which passed between William in Germantown and Jan in Kaldkirchen and their children from 1683 to about 1735, were hunted up for use in the trial. These original papers in Dutch and German, numbering about one hundred and fifty, and consisting of letters, agreements, accounts, etc., have recently been ascertained to be in the possession of the Library Company of Philadelphia, and have been gathered together and arranged by Prof. Thomas. Covering as they do the earliest period in the history of Pennsylvania, and filled as they are with the descriptive details of the work and the home life of the writers, they constitute an invaluable source of historical information, especially concerning Germantown. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

53188, O. Amelia; or the faithless Briton—An original American novel, founded upon recent facts. To which is added, Amelia, or malevolence defeated; and Miss Seward's monody on Major Andre, pp. (2) 36 + 18. R. Bost., Spottswood, 1798

This tract is not mentioned in Sabin's Bibliotheca, but from a description kindly furnished by Prof. Winsor, of the copy in Harvard College library, it appears that the above was published as an addition to Florian's Galatea, and that it has a frontispiece, which is lacking in the Library Co.'s copy. It is believed to have been originally published in Philadelphia.

10617, Q. Zonaras (J.)—Joannis Zonaræ et Photii lexica. Tomi III. R. Lipsiæ, 1808

Purchased for the sake of comparison with one of the Greek manuscripts in the library, presented by Henry Coxe, Esq., in the year 1798. The latter has recently been partially examined by Profs. Henry Drisler and Isaac H. Hall, of New York, and proves to be a fine copy of the Lexicon of Zonaras, with a number of interesting additions to other texts, besides unpublished variants. They purpose, as soon as practicable, to collate the manuscript throughout, and expect to be able fully to determine its relation to other extant manuscripts and to the printed texts. The examination made thus far is cursory, and not sufficient to furnish a thorough account; but it seems to be a manuscript of the thirteenth or fourteenth century, and is written in an elegant cursive hand. Its form is medium quarto, the pages about $7\frac{1}{2}$x$5\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and the written portion of the page about $5\frac{5}{8}$x4 inches. The material is vellum, and both the material and the writing are well preserved Initials are in uncial letters, and the initial lines of sections are in red with ornaments. The notes of gender, in the margin, are in red. The manuscript is esteemed a valuable one, and besides its apparently antique variants and additions, is probably the only example of the sort in the country.

These tracts, about nine thousand in number, mostly of the 19th century, were presented anonymously to the Ridgway Branch. About eight hundred—some very rare—relate to the civil war, the titles of a few being included in the present Bulletin. In the card catalogue, in addition to the usual entries, these and all other books and pamphlets relating to the public affairs of the U. States, are arranged in chronological order under the heading AMERICAN POLITICS.

10598, Q. American politics—[A collection of Union envelopes, engravings, portraits, caricatures, newspaper scraps, broadsides, relics, autographs, etc. etc., relating to the civil war.] 8 vols. v. p., 1861–'5

This very remarkable collection, made during the War, by John A. McAllister, Esq., is now presented by him to the Ridgway Branch, together with an assortment of similar material, as yet unarranged, sufficient to make about twenty quarto vols. more.

Boston, lying under the shadow of a great university, is really the only point which is producing anything in true literature, and that is so impregnated with fanaticism and rationalism that it is not pleasant for us, nor safe for anybody to indulge much in it. New York is a great book mart, a great publishing centre, but she produces no such writers as Irving, Paulding, Verplanck, Cooper, or Bryant. Philadelphia is a centre of science, but she has no literature of her own, no art such as she once could boast of.—Page 8.

5176, F. Great Britain—Ninth report of the Royal Commissioner on historical manuscripts. R. London, 1883

Includes a report on the SACKVILLE PAPERS, which relate, in part, to the American Revolution, ranging from 1775 to 1782. Among them are copies and drafts of Lord George's dispatches to America, many of them marked "private," or "most secret," and several papers dealing with the proceedings of the Commissioners appointed in 1778 to bring about a peace. Copious extracts are given in the Report. Under date of Aug. 23, 1777, for example, Lord George Sackville writes to Gen. Irvin: "We have reason to hope Burgoyne's progress will be rapid. . . . The last accounts say that General Washington had taken up his quarters at Morristown. . . . that the Quakers and their party have seized Philadelphia on the 20th July, and that there were considerable risings in the Province in favor of Government."

APPENDIX.

A LIST OF SOME OF THE OFFICIAL PUBLICATIONS

OF THE

SOCIETY OF THE CINCINNATI,

ORATIONS BEFORE THE STATE SOCIETIES AND OTHER WORKS RELATING THERETO.

Note: When not otherwise mentioned, the size is octavo. The numbers prefixed to some of the titles indicate such as the Library Company already has, and the letter N such as are in the possession of the N. Y. Historical Society. In most cases the edition was small, and issued to members only. Hence it is not supposed that the following is a complete Bibliography of works relating to the Society of the Cincinnati, but it would have been much less full than it is, had it not been for the kind co-operation of Dr. Herman Burgin, Assistant Treasurer General, who has not only contributed several of the following titles, but also presented the Library Co. with many of the recent official publications of the Society. The Library Co. is also indebted for various pamphlets to the Hon. Hamilton Fish, President General; Hon. Samuel C. Cobb, Pres. of the State Society of Massachusetts; Hon. Wilmot G. De Saussure, Pres. of the State Society of S. Carolina; Richard Dale, Esq., of the State Society of Pennsylvania; and Jacob B. Moore, Esq., of the N. Y. Historical Society.

THE GENERAL SOCIETY.

1281, O. 10, and 53582, O. 1. Considerations on the Society or Order of Cincinnati: lately instituted by the Major-Generals, Brigadier-Generals and other officers of the American Army. Proving that it creates a race of hereditary patricians or nobility. Interspersed with remarks on its consequences to the freedom and happiness of the Republic. Addressed to the people of South Carolina and their representatives. By Cassius. Supposed to be written by Ædanus Burke, Esquire, one of the chief Justices of the State of S. C. Blow ye the trumpet in Zion. The Bible. pp. 16. N Phil. Bell, 1783

The same. pp. 16. New York, 1783

The same. pp. 23. Hartford, 1783

The same. Hartford, 1784

Mr Burke happened to have recently published a pamphlet on the affairs of his own State, casting down the glove to Governor Rutledge and the dominant faction of the day. It was by these very men that the Institution of the Cincinnati in South Carolina was most warmly espoused. This was sufficient to fire his mind against the scheme. With a spirited but specious pen he attacked its origin, its constitution and its consequences.—N. A. Review.

A sketch of the life of Judge Burke will be found in the first volume of O'Neall's Bench and Bar of S. Carolina. Charleston, 1859.

Among the numerous controversial articles growing out of the publication of Burke's Considerations, the following in the Connecticut Courant are worthy of note: "A political creed" [by Oliver Wolcott], Jan. 6, 1784; "An address to the inhabitants of Connecticut" [by Noah Webster], Jan. 13, 1784; "To Cassius," signed A Connecticut Tory [Trumbull], Jan. 20, 1784. Others in the same paper are dated Feb. 10, March 30, April 6, and June 8, 1784.

1281, O. 11, 8598, O. 7, and 50361, O. 1. Observations on a late pamphlet entitled "Considerations upon the Society or Order of the Cincinnati," clearly evincing the innocence and propriety of that honorable and respectable institution. . . . By an obscure individual. pp. 28. N Phil. 1783

The same. 12mo. pp. 22. Hartford, 1784

1839, O. 4, L. A circular letter addressed to the State Societies of the Cincinnati, by the general meeting convened at Philadelphia, May 3, 1784. Together with the Institution as altered and amended. pp. 8. N Phil. Oswald, 1784

This letter was prepared by Gov. John Dickinson, of Pa., Col. Henry Lee, of Va., and Col. David Humphreys, of Ct., as appears by a note of the late Winthrop Sargent in the copy in the N. Y. Hist. Society's library.

Manuscript poem on the formation of the Society of the Cincinnati. pp. 9. N circa 1784

Considérations sur l'ordre de Cincinnatus, ou imitation d'un pamphlet Anglo-Américain, par le Comte De Mirabeau, suivies de plusieurs pièces relatives à cette institution; d'une lettre signée du Genéral Washington, accompagnée de Remarques par l'auteur François; d'une lettre de feu Monsieur Turgot, Ministre d'Etat en France, au Docteur Price, sur les Legislations Américaines; de la traduction d'un pamphlet du Docteur Price, entitulé: "Observations on the importance of the American Revolution, and the means of making it a benefit to the world;" accompagnée de reflexions et notes du traducteur. — "The glory of soldiers cannot be completed without acting well the part of citizens:" La gloire des Guerriers ne sauroit être complèté que lorsqu'ils savent remplir les devoirs des citoyens.—Lettre circulaire aux Sociétés d'Etat de l'ordre des Cincinnati signée du Genéral Washington. A Londres, Chez J. Johnson, St. Paul's Church Yard, 1784

Contains matter not in the English version.

The same. pp. xii. + 385 + 3.
N A Londres, and chez C. H. Hake à Rotterdam, 1785

The glory of soldiers cannot be completed without acting well the part of citizens. La gloire des guerriers ne sauroit être complète que lorsqu'ils savent remplir les devoirs des citoyens. Lettre circulaire aux Sociétés d'Etat de l'Ordre de Cincinnati, signée du Général Washington. pp. 12.
A Londres, chez J. Johnson, 1785

This tract, the title of which is taken from Sabin's Dictionary, is obviously a portion of the above work of Mirabeau.

The same. Deuxieme ed. Paris, 1815

1386, O. Considerations on the Order of Cincinnatus, to which are added, as well, several original papers relative to that Institution, as also a letter from the late M. Turgot, Comptroller of the Finances in France, to Dr. Price, on the Constitutions of America, and an abstract of Dr. Price's observations on the importance of the American Revolution; with notes and reflections upon that work. Translated from the French of the Count de Mirabeau [by Samuel Romilly]. pp. xii, 284.
N London, J. Johnson, 1785

In this work much eloquence is employed to prove, that the institution of this Order is the creation of a military nobility, which will in time form a dangerous aristocratic power, supported by numbers, military force, general respect, the right of inheritance, the power of holding assemblies at pleasure, and revenue. Monthly Review, July, 1785.

A remonstrance against the Order of Cincinnatus, proposed at one time to be established in America. By the Count de Mirabeau. [London, 1785?]

This title is taken from Watts' Bibliotheca, and it is probably a paraphrase of the above. The compiler volunteers the remark that "this remonstrance proved effectual."

1864, O. 5. L. Considerations on the Order of Cincinnatus. To which are added several original papers relative to that institution. Translated from the French of the Count de Mirabeau. . . . Appendix, containing The Instrument of Association and circular letter to the State Societies pp. vi and 82. [Phil. 1786?].

2799, O. L. and 14853, O. 11. Considerations on the order of Cincinnatus . . . from the French of Count de Mirabeau. . . . A new ed. with considerable corrections. pp. 68. N Phil. 1786

Des Grafen von Mirabeau Sammlung einiger philosophischen und politischen Schriften die Vereinigten Staaten von Nord Amerika betreffend. Nebst einem Schreiben von demselben an den Uebersetzer. Aus dem Französischen. Plate. pp. 6, 324. Berlin und Lebau, 1787

This work, the title of which is taken from Sabin, is doubtless the German translation spoken of by Mirabeau in his Introduction to the brochure Sur Moses Mendelssohn. There is a copy in the library of J. Carson Brevoort, Esq. According to Heinsius' Bücher-Lexicon, an ed. was pub. the same year at Leipzig.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The State Society of North Carolina does not appear to have published anything, and its records are lost. "General Sumner presided at the State meeting at Hillsboro, April 15 [1784], and appointed Col. Archibald Lyttle, Major Reading Blount, and Major Griffith J. McRae as delegates. This organization of the late officers was viewed by many with distrust as to its aims."—Moore's History of North Carolina, vol. i. page 357.

On the 23d July, 1823, Alexander Turnbull published the first number of the Sunday Chronicle, which was probably the earliest newspaper in the U. S., issued on the first day of the week. It was pub. at the S W. corner of 3d and Chestnut Sts., Phila. Only four or five numbers were issued. The second Sunday newspaper pub. in Phila. was the National Atlas and Sunday Morning Mail, begun July 31, 1836. On and after Oct. 4, 1836, "in compliance with general wish," its publication on Sunday was discontinued, and its name was changed.
This complete set, supposed to be unique, is the gift of Miss Margaretta A. Dick in memory of her father, the late Walter B. Dick.

This Latin version of Cowper's "Diverting history of John Gilpin" is from the pen of the late WILLIAM PETER, H. B. M. Consul in Philadelphia. The last stanza, which reads—

Et nunc canamus—vivat Rex
Gilpinus vivax sit;
Et sim spectator, iterùm
Quùm foràs eques it, is followed by a translation into Latin verse of the ballad of "Billee Taylor."

Instead of being written by one person, which, in a work of such magnitude, must necessarily be a superficial treatment, the topics have been assigned to well known writers selected with reference to their special fitness to treat those subjects. The work, therefore, in this respect is encyclopædic in its character; and yet the grouping of the chapters brings the related topics together and gives to the separate volumes a chronological and topical unity. Dial.

BULLETIN

OF THE

LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 19.

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,

ALSO

RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.
SUNDAY, 1 TO 6 P. M., FOR READERS ONLY.

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them may pay at the desk the cost of postal cards, and will then be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.

Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books — four volumes at a time—without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

As the Library needs many of its former Bulletins and Reports to meet the requests of other Libraries and Institutions, the Librarian will be glad to receive any such from members or others who may be willing to make such disposition of them.

EXTRACT FROM THE RULES.

Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

READING NOTES ON THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

THESE notes, prepared from a large mass of material collected as the basis of a Bibliography of the Constitution, are offered now to meet a want growing out of the interest felt in this subject, in connection with the centennial anniversary of the formation of the Constitution. Completeness is of course not aimed at, and but few references have been made to books not easily accessible. The numbers appended in parentheses are those which the books bear on the shelves of the Philadelphia Library.

JAMES G. BARNWELL.

A DECADE OF SELECTED BOOKS.

THOSE who, from inclination or lack of time, desire to consult only a select few of the books bearing on this subject, may refer for all essential facts, historical, documentary, and expository, to Frothingham's Rise of the Republic (19384, O.), Sherman's Governmental History (16143, O.), Preston's Documents illustrative of American History (25004, O.), Hough's American Constitutions (19464, O.), Poore's Charters and Constitutions (12329, O.), Centz's Republic of Republics (22718, O.), Stearns's Concordance (32632, D.), Story's Commentaries (8833, O.), Bancroft's Formation of the Constitution (23524, O.), and Porter's Outlines of Constitutional History (24990, D.).

TRACES OF OUR INSTITUTIONS IN ROMAN LAW.

THOUGH the connection is rather remote, the highest authorities see in some of our local institutions germs that are traceable to Roman municipal law. Refer for these to Legaré's Influence of Roman Legislation, in his Works, vol. 1, pp. 502–58 (16645, O.); Sir Henry Maine's Roman Law, in his Village Communities (18941, O.), Poste's edition of the Roman Law by Gaius (19043, O.), Sandars's Justinian (20549, O.), and Blakey's Political Literature, vol. 1 (18036, O.).

EUROPEAN FEDERATIONS.

FREEMAN'S Federal Government (15640, O.) gives the best history of the development of the federative idea in ancient Greece. The 2d and 3d volumes of John Adams's Defence of the American Constitutions (2163, O.) contain a political history of the Italian Republics. It may be found also in vols. 5 and 6 of his Works (12515, O.). May's Democracy in Europe (21300, O.) is important in this connection for what it tells us of the Swiss Confederacy and the United Netherlands. For the latter, see also Motley's History (15146, O.). Guizot's History of Civilization (15055, D.) may be consulted, and also an able article in the Edinburgh Review, vol. 83 (2993, O.), entitled European and American State Confederacies, by Nassau W. Senior. The posthumous publication of President Monroe, The People the Sovereigns (17185, D.), institutes a comparison between our government and that of the ancient republics.

THE ENGLISH CONSTITUTION.

The English Constitution, unlike our own, is not a single instrument, but it is made up of a long series of royal grants and legislative enactments from the Great Charter to the Franchise Extension Act of 1885, with nothing, except their fundamental nature, to distinguish them from ordinary Acts of Parliament.

The analogies which the underlying principles of the two Constitutions bear to each other, have often been a subject of comment to the superficial observer who thinks only of the antipathies engendered during the disputes that culminated in our independence. But it should ever be borne in mind that the colonists fought not to subvert but to maintain the principles of the British Constitution.

Read on this subject, Freeman's Growth of the English Constitution (19894, D.), May's Constitutional History (15323, O.), especially vol. 2, chap. 17, Status of the Colonies, and De Lolme's Constitution of England (15021, D.), in which it is compared with that of republican as well as with other monarchical governments. Stephens's edition of this author's Rise and Progress of the English Constitution (9648, O.) is important. Tyrrell's Bibliotheca Politica (827, F.) is described as a perfect mine of constitutional lore. Hallam's Constitutional History (11715, D.), Ramsay's anonymous Historical Essay (1034, O.), and Mill on Representative Government (15312, O.), may be read with profit; but most important of all, is Stubbs's Constitutional History (20900, D.), the author of which is designated by Prof. Freeman, himself no mean authority, as the greatest master of English Constitutional history. For a purely legal exposition, Judge Sharswood's edition of Blackstone's Commentaries (15266, O.) is beyond all praise, as it contains the notes of the best English editors as well as his own.

NEW ENGLAND CONFEDERACY OF 1643.

The tendency to a federal union developed itself at an early period of the colonial history. Many plans were proposed, but the New England Union of 1643 was the only one that went into practical operation before the Revolution. It continued in force about forty years. For a history of it, see Hildreth's United States, vol. 1 (12244, O.), Pitkin's United States, vol. 1 (6470, O.), Chalmers's Political Annals (1432, Q.), and Chalmers's Revolt of the Colonies, vol. 1 (11498, O.).

For the full text of these Articles of Confederation, see Lalor's Political Encyclopædia (51998, O.), Preston's Documents (25004, O.), and Hazard's Historical Collections, vol. 2 (642, Q.). The latter contains in addition the entire proceedings of the Commissioners while the union endured.

See a sketch by Lossing in Harper's Magazine, vol. 25, pp. 627–34 (12501, O.), and John Quincy Adams's commemorative discourse on the celebration of the second centennial of the confederacy, to be found in the Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, 3d series, vol. 9 (11734, O.).

ALBANY PLAN OF UNION, 1754.

THIS plan, which was essentially Franklin's, was almost unanimously agreed to by a congress assembled chiefly for that purpose, and with absolute unanimity it was rejected alike by the colonies and the mother country. The full text of the plan may be found in Preston's Documents, p. 170 (25004, O.), Lalor's Cyclopædia (51998, O.), Pownall's Administration of the Colonies, Appendix iv. (1494, O.), Minot's Continuation of the History of Mass., vol. 1, p. 188 (3841, O.), The American Museum, vol. 5, for 1789 (1626, O.), pp. 190–4, 285–7, and 365–8, and O'Callaghan's Colonial Documents (2640, Q). It is given imperfectly in the Collections of the Mass. Hist. Soc'y for 1800 (4050, O.), but correctly and in full, together with the proceedings of the Congress, in vol. 5 of the 3d series (11734, O.), pp. 5–74, and in the Colonial Records of Pennsylvania, vol. 6, pp. 57–129 (13102, O.).

In Sparks's edition of Franklin's works, vol. 3, pp. 22–68 (9464, O.), the plan is given accompanied with the author's explanations, a sort of running commentary. This is reproduced in vol. 2 of the new edition of Franklin's works, edited by Bigelow (25090, O.), now in course of publication.

For historical information and the controversies connected with its promulgation, see Trumbull's Connecticut, vol. 2 (5169, O.), Hopkins's Albany Plan and the Reply of Philalethes, both of which are in Rider's R. I. Reprints (3761, Q.), Pitkin's U. S., vol. 1, p. 142 (6470, O.), Hutchinson's Massachusetts, vol. 3, p. 20 (1502, O.), and Frothingham's Rise of the Republic, pp. 132–51 (19384, O.).

OTHER PLANS OF UNION, 1698–1774.

THE sagacious founder of Pennsylvania was one of the earliest to devise a general plan of union for the colonies which he did in 1698. Its text is in Preston's Documents, p. 146 (25004, O.), O'Callaghan's N. Y. Colonial Documents, vol. 4, pp. 296–7 (2640, Q.), and Frothingham's Rise of the Republic, p. 111 (19384, O.).

The same year Charles D'Avenant in his Discourse on the Plantation Trade, proposed a plan of Colonial Union, which was republished in his collected Works (1027, O.), vol. 2, pp. 1–76.

In 1701 an anonymous Virginian published a plan of union in a pamphlet entitled: Essay upon the Government of the English Plantations. I have not seen the pamphlet, but an abstract of his plan is given in Frothingham (19384, O.).

Livingston's plan also dating from 1701 is registered in O'Callaghan's Col. Documents (2640, Q.), vol. 4, pp. 874–5.

In 1721 John, Earl of Stair, one of the Proprietaries of East Jersey, proposed a plan, which is meagrely outlined in Bancroft's History of the Constitution (23524, O.).

Daniel Coxe in his Carolana (2121, O.) first published in 1722, urges a union of the colonies as a necessity of resisting the encroachments of the French. In a very extended preface he gives his plans in detail.

Archibald Kennedy's plan was published in an anonymous pamphlet: Importance of gaining and preserving the friendship of the Indians, N. Y., 1751 (1570, O. 5), and was republished, London, 1752 (1585, O. 1).

The plan of Governor Dinwiddie, of Virginia, chiefly remembered for his connection with Braddock's ill-fated expedition, is given in its principal features in Frothingham, pp. 116–7 (19384, O.).

Hutchinson's plan, 1754, is given in full in Frothingham, pp. 613–6 (19384, O.), taken from the Mass. Archives, vol. 6, pp. 171–6.

Prof. Tyler, in his History of American Literature, vol. 2 (21834, O.), gives a summary of the causes leading to a general union, the era of which he fixes at 1765, when the Stamp Act Congress met at New York. For the proceedings of this Congress, see Niles's Principles and Acts of the Revolution, and Niles's Register, July 25, 1812 (4367, O.).

The Continental Congress at first was a purely revolutionary body, whose powers were vague and undefined, prior to the adoption of the Articles of Confederation in 1781. Whatever validity its proceedings had, was based upon the patriotic acquiescence of the people united by common dangers. When it first met on Sept. 5, 1774, twelve colonies were represented, the deputies from only four of which, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and South Carolina, were chosen by any legally organized constituency. The others were chosen by committees of citizens or by members of the legislatures in their unofficial capacity. Its Journals (1596, O.) were published yearly during its existence, and republished in 1823 (9006, O.). See, also, Secret Journals, Boston, 1820 (5434, O.).

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION.

These were first proposed by Franklin on July 21, 1775, but were not fully matured and passed by Congress until November 15, 1777. They were ratified and became operative March 1, 1781.

For the text of the Articles, see Secret Journals, vol. 1 (5434, O.), Preston's Documents (25004, O.), Bioren's Laws of the U. S., vol. 1 (5052, O.), Lalor's Cyclopædia (51998, O.), Hough's Am. Constitutions (19464, O.), and various collective editions of the Constitutions of the States. Hickey's Constitution, pp. 483–90 (9654, O.), contains a copy which has been "critically compared with the original and found to conform minutely in text, letter, and punctuation."

For other sources of information, see Blunt's Formation of the Confederacy (17115, O.), Drayton's Speech on the A. of C. (796, D. 4), View of the Federal Government, its defects and a proposed remedy, in Amer. Museum, vol. 1 (1626, O.), and in the same volume the Address of the Annapolis Convention recommending a convention to revise the Articles. See, also, Three Letters of Tullius (21614, O. 3), the third of which shows the defects of the Act of Confederation and suggests a remedy, and a paper by John Fiske on the Weakness of the U. S. Government under the A. of C. in the Atlantic Monthly, vol. 57 (14532, O.).

THE FEDERAL CONVENTION.

See Tucker's History of the Convention of 1787 in the New Englander, vol. 11 (16802, O.), Bancroft's Formation of the Constitution (23524, O.), Curtis's Origin and Formation of the Constitution (13241, O.), Hildreth's History, vol. 3, pp. 482–547 (12244, O.), Lalor's Cyclopædia, s. v. Convention of 1787 (51998, O.), Journals of Congress (1596, O.), vol. 12, for the Call of the Convention, and vol. 13, for the Commissions of Members and the Several Acts of Ratification, and Rives's Life of Madison (14919, O.).

For the Proceedings and Debates of the Convention itself, see Elliot's Debates, vol.

5 (12668, O.), Journal of the Convention (5338, O.), Secret Proceedings (5439, O.), The Madison Papers (9859, O.).

M. D. Conway has written an article on Randolph's Draft of the Const. in Scribner for Sept. 1887, vol. 2, p. 312. The original Draft of Hamilton's Plan is in the Astor Library, having been presented by his grandson.

TEXT OF THE CONSTITUTION.

I BELIEVE I am within bounds when I express the opinion that there have been not less than a thousand editions of this instrument. Those referred to here have some special feature commending them to consideration.

The first impressions of the Completed Constitution appeared simultaneously in five Philadelphia newspapers on Wednesday, Sept. 19th, 1787. This was two days after the original was signed. The first oral reading of it was probably on Sept. 18th, when it was received and read in the Pennsylvania Legislature then in session at Philadelphia. It was reprinted in the Columbian Magazine (3661, O.), and in the American Museum for Sept. 1787 (1326, O.), and in various papers and pamphlets.

The script copy in Burleigh's Legislative Guide (14276, O), is accompanied by a certificate from the State Department that it is "accurate in the capitals, orthography, text, and punctuation." In Force's National Calendar for 1828 (10980, D.), is a copy similarly certified.

Hickey's Constitution (9654, D.) contains much valuable matter, especially an alphabetical index referring to Article, Section, and Clause, but Stearns's Concordance (32632, D.) contains in compact form and clear type, the text of the Constitution, an index or digest classified under subject headings, and a concordance to every word important and unimportant, with two or three exceptions.

Hough's American Constitutions (19464, O.), in addition to the text of all the Constitutions as existing in 1871, contains important historical and statistical matter. Poore's Constitutions and Charters (12329, O.), in addition to those actually in force at the time of its publication, contains all that ever had been in force in the colonies and states. Dr. Mayo in his Political Sketches (17029, O.), published a series of charts giving a comparative synopsis of the State Constitutions and that of the U. S., and Carey & Lea's American Atlas (5112, F.) tabulates the same information.

TRANSLATIONS OF THE TEXT.

TRANSLATIONS have been published in French, Spanish, German, Dutch, Chinese, and probably other languages. See Dareste's Les Constitutions modernes, and Poussin's Puissance américaine (10878, O.), for French versions. Conseil in his Mélanges politiques published another French version in 1833 in which he gives the House of Representatives the power to determine not only its own rules but those of the Senate, and transposes the relative powers of the President and Senate in appointments to office. Tocqueville the following year, copied these errors in his work on America, and they long remained uncorrected.

It is said that an enthusiastic Frenchman set our Constitution to music, but I have never met with a copy. See A Chinese translation of the Constitution of the U. S. in The Nation, vol. 34, p. 29 (3056, Q.).

DISCUSSION PENDING ITS ADOPTION.

See Elliot's Debates in the State Conventions (12668, O.), Address of the minority of the Pennsylvania Convention, in Am. Museum, vol. 2, pp. 536–53, Address to the People of New York (1387, Q.), anonymous, but by John Jay, Examination of the proposed Constitution (2395, O. 7), The Letters of Fabius, i. e., John Dickinson (2939, O. 8. L.), Strictures and Observations by Massachusettensis, i. e., Daniel Leonard (9110, O. 3), Thoughts on the Political Situation (pamph.), an anonymous publication of Jonathan Jackson, Hopkinson's Essays, vol. 2 (1973, O.), The Pennsylvania Debates (1769, O.), Constitution for the U. S. by Fabius, No. 2, copied from the New Hampshire Gazette, 1788, into the Hist. Mag. vol. 18 (14440, O.), The Am. Museum (1625, O.), and above all, The Federalist, Dawson's edition (15835, O.), Hamilton's (15888, O.), and Lodge's (24458, O.).

The Acts of Ratification are published in Niles's Register, vol. 43, suppl. (4367, O.). A. W. Clason has published a series of articles in the Mag. of Am. Hist. (3545, Q.), on the conventions of New York, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, called to decide the question of ratification, and in the same Magazine for Sept., 1887, Mr. F. N. Thorpe discourses of the Origin of the Federal Constitution. McMaster, vol. 1, Chapt. 5 (23809, O.), gives a vivid picture of the varying phases of the contest.

THE FEDERAL PROCESSION.

Previous to June 21, 1788, the present Constitution had no vitality. It was in precisely the condition of the Albany plan of union after the Congress of 1754, or any other mere proposition. Subsequent to Sept. 17th, 1787, it was invariably referred to as the proposed Constitution. It needed the ratification of the conventions of nine states to give it life, and the ninth state, New Hampshire, ratified it on the first named date. Then, it became the Constitution of the United States and that event was celebrated in the Federal city, at the earliest date practicable after the receipt of the news, by the grandest pageant that had ever been seen on this continent. There has really been but one account of it written, and that is the official one by Francis Hopkinson. It has been many times printed. See the Pennsylvania Gazette for July 9th, 1788 (177, F.), The American Museum, vol. 4, pp. 57–78 (1625, O.), Hazard's Register of Pennsylvania, vol. 1, pp. 417–25 (7115, O.), and Hopkinson's Essays, vol. 2, pp. 349–422 (1973, O.). See also, Watson's Annals, vol. 2, pp. 341–6 (11131, O.) and Scharf and Westcott's Philadelphia, vol. 1, pp 447–52 (4048, Q.).

OTHER CELEBRATIONS.

The N. Y. Historical Society celebrated the jubilee of the Constitution, in 1839, just half a century from the date on which it went into full operation. On this occasion John Quincy Adams delivered a commemorative discourse (52639, O.).

Hitchcock's Oration at Providence was delivered the same day as that of the Federal Procession in Philadelphia, and was in celebration of the same event, viz: the "Accession of nine states to the Federal Constitution." In 1861 the city of Philadelphia celebrated the 74th Anniversary of the signing (54164, O.). In 1854 Mr. John Connell, of Wilmington, proposed an annual celebration of the adoption of the Constitution. In 1855 R. H. Gillett delivered an oration on the anniversary of the adoption.

HISTORY AND PRACTICAL OPERATION.

THE origin, progress, and decline of parties and the position which they and their leaders took on questions of public policy arising under the Constitution, may be learned most fully in the discussions in Congress, for which see, in succession, The Annals of Congress (12242, O.), Congressional Debates (12821, O.), Congressional Globe (2503, Q.), and the Congressional Record (2503, Q). Benton's Abridgement, in 16 volumes (14127, O.), comes down to 1856, and embraces nearly everything of permanent interest. His Thirty Years' View (13162, O.) shows the earnest desire of a strong partisan to be fair, and for the period which it covers, 1821 to 1851, will always be a valuable record of our political history.

Burr's History of the Union (51602, D.), and his Notes on the Constitution (50974, D.), together with Calhoun's Constitution and Government of the United States (13105, O.), may be consulted as representing the extreme strict constructionist view. The latter was reviewed by Prof. Bowen in the N. A. Review, vol. 76 (4850, O.). Davis's American Constitution (24094, O.) sketches the changes which have been for a century silently going on in the relations of the different departments of the government. J. C. Hamilton's History (17432, O.) is substantially a political history of his father's lifetime, from the Federalist point of view. Holst's Constitutional and Political History of the United States (20618, O.), is a most valuable contribution to the literature of the subject. Five volumes have thus far been published covering the period from 1750 to 1856. Schouler's History under the Constitution (23727, D.) should not be overlooked, while Porter's (24990, D.) is a good short history, and Johnston's American Politics (23252, D.) gives in the briefest way a connected narrative of our purely political history. Holmes's Parties and their Principles (13254, D.) is a much more satisfactory book and deserves to be more widely known. A new edition is desirable, as it comes down only to the eve of the civil war. President Van Buren's History of Political Parties (17411, O.) should be read for the stirring times of Jacksonian politics, and Cooper's American Politics (53715, O.), non-partisan, ably complements the two latter.

Alden Bradford (10349, O.) gives us the first half century under the Constitution, Sterne's Constitutional History (24740, D.) comes down to a recent period, and Skinner's Issues of American Politics (19962, D.) is a valuable and comprehensive treatise, embracing all the prominent topics that have engaged public attention.

For changes in the operation of the Constitution, see, in addition to Davis (24094, O.), before referred to, Henry Reed's article in the International Review, vol. 2 (20047, O.), entitled The Constitution in 1787 and in 1866, The Federal Constitution Formerly and Now (13207, O.), Howard's Dred Scott Case (14762, O.), and Dwight's Hartford Convention (8923, O.).

ELEMENTARY EXPOSITIONS.

DAWES'S How we are Governed (31869, D.), the title of which, by the way, is borrowed from an English publication, is an excellent book for young people. Flanders's Exposition (20928, D.), Bayard's Brief Exposition (5616, D.), Hancock's Constitution and Government (50922, D.), Sheppard's Constitutional Text-Book (12340, D.), Story's Familiar Exposition, and Moulton's Constitutional Guide (22285, D.), all by eminent lawyers, are adapted to popular use and to elementary instruction. Hart's Exposition, though the production of a layman, has probably familiarized a larger number of people with our great organic law than any other single publication.

Du Ponceau's Brief View (5862, D.) and Rawle's View of the Constitution (5942, O.), while not of great extent, are of a higher grade. They are the productions of two of the greatest ornaments of the Philadelphia bar. The latter was published in 1825, a second edition in 1829, and a French translation by Conseil was published at Paris in 1833. This translation is notable for several radical errors in the text of the Constitution. Duer's Outlines (7647, D.) may take rank with these.

JUDICIAL AND POLITICAL EXPOSITIONS.

THE most obvious sources of information for the judicial interpretation of the Constitution are primarily of course, The Supreme Court Reports, and secondarily, Curtis's Decisions and Digest, Brightly's Federal Decisions, and the United States Digest. Next, The Opinions of the Attorneys-General expounding the Constitution (14360, O.). Gordon's Digest (6977, O.) is superseded by more recent works.

Next in authority, rank such works as Kent's Commentaries (6318, O.), Marshall on the Federal Constitution (9754, O.), Sergeant's Constitutional Law (5630, O.), Pomeroy's Introduction (24463, O.), and, above all, Story's Commentaries (8833, O.), for a review of which see Upshur's Brief Enquiry (15678, O.).

For the general view of the nature of the Constitution, see Lieber's What is our Constitution, league, pact, or government? (54117, O.), Field's The Constitution not a compact between sovereign states (15417, O.), and Webster's great speech bearing the same title in his Works, vol. 3 (12816, O.).

For more specific application of general principles of constitutional interpretation to particular measures, see the speeches and other writings of our leading statesmen, Madison (9859, O.), Hamilton (13151, O.), Adams (12515, O.), and Jefferson (13108, O.) for the early period, Webster (12816, O.), Calhoun (13105, O.), Clay (14198, O.), and Benton (13162, O.) for the middle period, and Cox (24610, O.), Garfield (23814, O.), and Blaine (24158, O.) for the last third of the Constitutional century.

VIEWS OF DISTINGUISHED FOREIGNERS.

M. BOUTMY'S work, Constitutions étrangères, treats entirely of the Constitution of the United States. It is reviewed in The Nation, vol. 39, pp. 154–5 (3056, Q.). Cobbett's "Trial of republicanism proving the debasing consequences of republican government and written constitutions" (2951, O.), shows the opinion of a most radical Englishman who was long resident here.

Riethmüller's Life of Hamilton (14960, D.) is more than a mere personal biography. It is an able review of the Constitution during the formative period and the early years of its actual operation. Tocqueville's Democracy in America (15542, O.) is by one of the most intelligent foreigners who have written of our institutions. The same may be said of Marbois whose History of Louisiana (7073, O.) contains an admirable essay on our Constitution.

Holst's Constitutional History of the United States (20618, O.) exhibits a familiarity with our institutions and even with the details of our local politics that is almost wonderful, and it is written in a broad, philosophic vein.

AMENDMENTS—ACTUAL AND PROPOSED.

Of the many amendments suggested with more or less formality by individuals, conventions, legislatures, or congressmen, nineteen passed through the first stage recognized by the Constitution itself, of being "proposed" by two-thirds of both Houses of Congress. Of these all but four have been "ratified." The first of these four related to the apportionment of representatives, the second to the compensation of members, the third prohibited any citizen from receiving office, title, or gift from a foreign government, and the fourth provided for non-interference with slavery in the States. See Poore's Charters and Constitutions (12329, O.), Hough's Constitutions (19464, O.), and Chittenden's Report of Proceedings (16057, O.).

Mr. Hillhouse, in 1808, proposed a number of amendments making radical changes (2993, O.). Mr. McDuffie, in 1826, submitted an amendment to choose presidential electors by single districts, and to elect directly by the people in case no candidate had an absolute majority. For many pamphlets on this subject, see (50726, O.), (53335, O.), and (6249, O.).

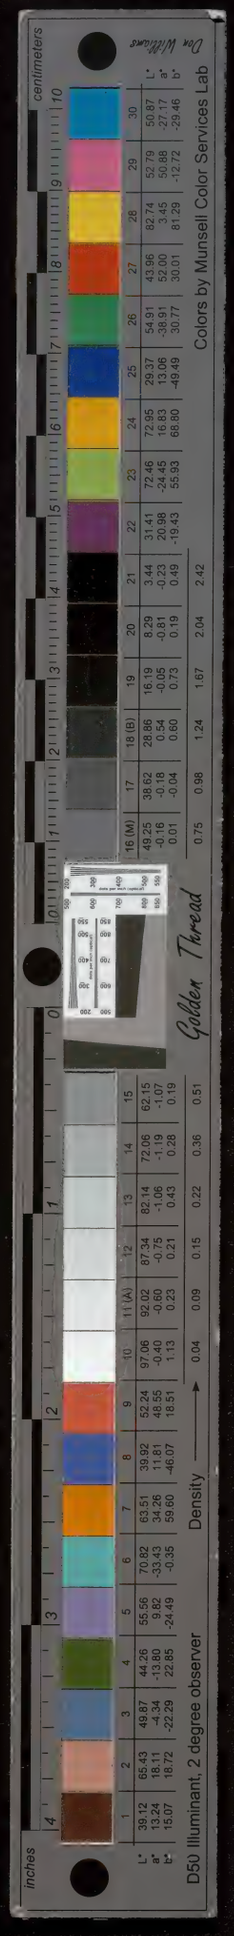
For the exciting times leading to the adoption of the Twelfth Amendment, see Randall's Jefferson, vol. 2 (14509, O.), and Duane's Debate in the Senate (7653, O. 2). For an article on a proposed change of the apportionment clause, see The New Englander, vol. 3, pp. 591–4 (16802, O.). For various other propositions, see Proceedings of the National Convention in favor of a religious amendment (21095, O.), Walker's Speech for the Thirteenth Amendment (53536, O.), Sedgwick on the Suffrage Amendment, in The Nation, vol. 8 (3056, Q.), and Blair's Prohibitory Amendment (23022, D. 4).

In 1833, the Legislatures of South Carolina and Georgia requested the calling of a convention to revise the Constitution, and more recently, Stickney, in his Democratic Government (31811, D.), and C. T. Hopkins, in the Overland Monthly, 2d series, vol. 6 (25162, O.), urge the same thing.

COMPARISON WITH OTHER CONSTITUTIONS.

Tremenheere's "Constitution of the United States compared with our own" (10937, D.), is a labored effort to demonstrate the superiority of the latter, and to his own satisfaction the author proves his position from the mouths of American witnesses. Mather's Constitutions of Great Britain, France, and the United States (53882, O.) consists chiefly of such documents as will enable the reader to make his own comparisons and deductions. Aiken's British and American Constitutions (7514, D.) is a temperately written comparison of the two, but with the inevitable insular assumption that any deviation from the former is necessarily a departure from what is best.

Johnson's Free Government in England and America (16060, O), published during the war, endeavors to show the subversion of free government here by too free an application of the legal maxim: Inter arma silent leges. Bradford's review of Bagehot's English Constitution, in the N. Am. Review, vol. 118 (4850, O.), is really a comparison of the English and American Constitutions. Trumbull, in his Aristocracy in America, an article in the Nineteenth Century, vol. 18 (21175, O.), endeavors to show the democratic tendencies of the English Constitution and the aristocratic tendencies of the American. Gladstone's Kin beyond Sea, reprinted from the N. Am. Review for September, 1878 (4850, O.), in his Gleanings of Past Years, vol. 1



(23098, D.), is an impartial and almost generous review of the differences and resemblances between the Constitutions of England and the United States.

For a more general comparative collection of Constitutions, see La Croix's Review of the Constitutions of the principal States of Europe and America (2065, O.), Laferrière's Constitutions of Europe and America (18140, O.), and Dareste's Les constitutions modernes (24245, O.). The last named gives the full text of the Constitution of the United States and of Pennsylvania, and an abstract of that of every civilized state in the world. Mills's Colonial Constitutions (13999, O.) shows manifest evidences of the influence of our own on those of the English colonies, though none of them can be said to be modelled after it.

CONSTITUTION OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES.

The Constitution of the Confederate States was simply an amended copy of that of the United States, prepared somewhat hastily amid the din of impending civil strife. The main points of difference affect the grounds of the controversy, but some of the non-political changes made commend themselves to universal approval, and in case of any general revision would undoubtedly be incorporated in the Constitution of the United States.

The text of the Confederate Constitution is in the Virginia Acts of Assembly for 1862 (51292, O.), the Provisional and Permanent Constitutions of the C. S. (17142, O.), Constitution of the C. S. (52650, O.), and in the Confederate Statutes at large (10167, Q.). The last named may be regarded as most authentic.

MacPherson's Political History of the United States during the Rebellion (16044, O.), and Centz's Republic of Republics (22718, O.) note the various differences in the two Constitutions, but Sabin Hough, in a dime pamphlet which has now become rare, gives the two in parallel columns, in ordinary type where their language is in common, and in small capitals and italics respectively where they differ, even in a single word or letter.

For accounts of its formation and practical working, see The Confederate States Government, in the American Historical Record, vol. 7 (3265, Q.), The Confederate States and their Constitution, by J. L. M. Curry, in The Galaxy, vol. 17 (16672, O.), and an address on the Confederate Constitution by R. H. Smith (53357, O.), delivered before his constituents in Mobile just after its formation.

LIVES OF THE MEMBERS OF THE FEDERAL CONVENTION.

Of the sixty-five persons appointed, two, Henry and Jones, declined, and one, Caswell, resigned, and had their places supplied. Seven others, Pickering, West, Dana, Neilson, Clark, Walton, and Pendleton, did not attend, three, Lansing, Yates, and Luther Martin, left before the Convention adjourned, thirty-nine signified their approval of the Constitution by signing it, and thirteen who were present at or near the close of the sittings of the Convention failed to do so.

Of the whole number, nine, Sherman, Franklin, Morris, Clymer, Wilson, Read, Wythe, Walton, and Clark, were also signers of the Declaration of Independence, and sketches of them may be found in Sanderson (5387, O.), Dwight (9805, D.), Judson 9698, O.), Lossing (12278, D.), and other Lives of the Signers.

The National Portrait Gallery (2610, Q.) also contains biographies of Washington by Herring, of Franklin by John Jay Smith, of Hamilton by Chancellor Kent, of Rufus King by Herring, of C. C. Pinckney by Col. James Lynch, and of Abraham Baldwin by Joel Barlow and Judge Baldwin.

The life of Gerry has been written by Austin (6350, O.), but it extends only to the close of the Revolution; that of Johnson by Beardsley (20860, O.), and by John T. Irving (50619, O. 8), of Ellsworth by Flanders, in his Lives of the Chief Justices, vol. 2 (13643, O.), by Van Santvoord in his work bearing the same title (13197, O.), by Judge Miller in his Supreme Court (3517, Q.), and by Mrs. Sigourney in Longacre and Herring's National Portrait Gallery, vol. 4 (2610, Q.), and also in her Examples from the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries (11952, D.). An anonymous Life of Robert Morris (17368, O.) was published in 1841, and one by Herring in National Portrait Gallery, vol. 4. See also Biographical Encyclopædia of Pennsylvania (3385, Q.), and Scharf and Westcott's Philadelphia, p. 277. The best life of Gouverneur Morris is that by Sparks (7364, O.); see, also, however, Tuckerman's Essays, pp. 412–27 (14054, O.), wherein he is sketched as the typical American statesman.

The life of Caleb Strong is briefly told by Bradford (5441, O.), and that of Williamson by Dr. Hosack (9138, O. 4), by Thacher in his Medical Biography (6409, O.), and by Scharf and Westcott in their History of Philadelphia, vol. 2 (4048, Q.).

Edwards's Biography of Self-Taught Men (71078, D.), Seymour's Self-Made Men (12760, D.), and Mrs. Sigourney's Examples (11952, D.), narrate the career of Roger Sherman rather superficially, while Theodore Sedgwick has given us an ably written biography of Gov. Livingston (8835, O.). Arnold's Distinguished Jerseymen (54209, O. 10), contains a life of Abraham Clark.

For a life of Gov. Mifflin see Rawle's Sketch (50458, O), read before the Pennsylvania Historical Society, that by Budd in National Portrait Gallery, that by Armor in his Lives of the Governors (3261, O. L.), and in Washington and the Generals of the Revolution (8645, D.). The latter work also contains a life of John Dickinson, as does Jones's American Biography, vol. 2 (10399, Q.); also, Scharf and Westcott's Philadelphia (4048, Q.), and National Portrait Gallery (2610, Q.), the latter written by Budd.

Very little, in a collected form at least, has been recorded of Thomas Fitzsimons. A brief sketch may be found in Scharf and Westcott, and one somewhat inaccurate in Simpson's Eminent Philadelphians (14934, O.). Simpson also gives sketches of all the other Pennsylvania members except Gouverneur Morris, and also of Dickinson, who represented Delaware.

An important contribution to the subject is W. T. Read's Life and Correspondence of his Grandfather, George Read (18610, O.), the subject of which received a severe castigation in The biographical history of Dionysius, Tyrant of Delaware [i. e., George Read], written by Dr. James Tilton, under the pseudonym of Timoleon (16991, O. 2).

An able though brief sketch of James McHenry, in a paper read by Fred. J. Brown before the Maryland Historical Society, was published in 1877 (22484, O.). It may be said of Wirt's that it is the Life of Patrick Henry (5033, O.), without detracting from the merits of that by A. H. Everett in Sparks's American Biography (5795, D.), or that by Arnold (11029, D.). T. A. Budd also contributed a life of him to the N. P. Gallery (2610, Q.), and Seymour gives him a place in his Self-made Men (12760, D.). Drinkard's Oration on his Life and Character (23560, O.) may be read with profit, and also chapter 9 in Magoon's Orators of the American Revolution (8832, D.).

The life of Rutledge has been written by Charles Gayarré, the historian of Louisiana (1066, Q. 16), and in the N. P. Gallery (2610, Q.) by Dr. Ramsay, but it is best told in Flanders's Lives of the Chief Justices (13643, O.), wherein may also be found the life of John Jay, who, though not a member of the convention, contributed materially by his powerful abilities to the accomplishment of its work. The lives of these worthies may also be found in Van Santvoord (13197, O.).

The life of W. R. Davie by Hubbard is in Sparks's American Biography (5795,D.), and by A. H. Davie in N. P. Gallery (2610, Q.). Lanman's life of Luther Martin is in the N. P. Gallery, and a short sketch appears in Scharf's Western Maryland, p. 383 (10515, Q.). On p. 769 of the same work is a sketch of Daniel Carroll. The life of McClurg may be found in Thacher's Medical Biography (6409, O.), and for that of Governor Randolph by M. D. Conway, see Lippincott's Magazine, vol. 40 (17767, O.).

Of the greater lights of the convention, Madison, Franklin, Hamilton, and Washington, much has been written.

A good short life of Madison is that by Sydney Howard Gay (31557, D.) in Morse's American Statesmen series. Dr. Charles Mackay, in his Founders of the American Republic (32492, D.), gives an account of him from an English point of view. Charles J. Ingersoll wrote an excellent but brief biography for the N. P. Gallery (2610, Q). Of course Abbott's Lives of the Presidents (20269, O.) gives a well-written if not profound sketch, but Rives's life in 3 volumes (14919, O.) would leave nothing to be desired had the venerable author lived to complete the work by the publication of a fourth volume. The three published, however, cover the period relating to the present subject.

There are many editions of Franklin's autobiography. One was published at Dublin in 1795 (21335, O.), with a questionable portrait. The standard edition of his life and writings has hitherto been that edited by Sparks (9464, O.), and published originally in 1840. The biography was published in 1844 as a separate volume. John Bigelow has edited three gradually expanding editions. The first in 1868 in one volume (17571, D.), the second in three volumes in 1874 (20781, D.), and the third now in course of publication and comprising also his other works (25090, O.). It is of course included in William Temple Franklin's edition of his grandfather's writings, published in 3 quarto volumes in London, and republished here in 6 octavo volumes (5112, O.), which in a later edition of 1834 (9106, O.) were comprised in two. The MS. materials for as many more volumes have after many vicissitudes found their way to the Library of Congress, having been purchased from Henry Stevens, who has published an account of them (3869, Q.). Of these materials Mr. Bigelow has largely availed himself.

Parton has written a Life of Franklin (15069, D.), agreeable and entertaining as are all his productions, and in his People's Book of Biography (20025, O.) he discusses the question of Franklin's pecuniary meanness with a verdict in his favor.

For a Sunday-school biography, see Benjamin Franklin "Doer of Good" (15764, D.), and for one by Theodore Parker, see that author's Historic Americans (18964, D.), where his merits are discussed rather favorably from the theological and political point of view of the writer.

Charles Mackay devotes 30 pages to him as one of the five Founders of the American Republic (32492, D.), and Henry Simpson, in his Eminent Philadelphians (14934, O.), gives him less than 3 out of nearly 1000 pages.

Shea's Historical Study of Hamilton (22122, O.), is "an elaborate exposition of his early and least known years." Riethmüller's Hamilton, or the Rise of the American Constitution (14960, D.), is a foreigner's view of the Constitutional epoch. Lord, in his Beacon Lights of History (31355, D.), portrays him as the founder of the Constitution, and Smucker (12155, D.) declares him to be "beyond all question" second to Washington alone, "in war, in peace, and in the hearts of his countrymen," two-thirds of which may well be doubted.

Lodge's Hamilton (24507, D.) in Morse's American Statesmen series, is a volume of convenient size, while the one previously written by Mr. Morse himself (21494, D.) is more elaborate and devotes a larger space to the formation of the Constitution. The life written by his son, John C. Hamilton (8993, O.), which stops at that very point, is largely derived from sources of information not accessible to others. The same writer's History of the United States, based on the writings of Alexander Hamilton and his contemporaries (14368, O.), especially vol. 3, should be carefully examined by all interested in the subject.

Hamilton's own writings in seven volumes (13151, O.), were published by J. C. Hamilton, but a greatly improved edition (24458, O.), in nine volumes by Lodge, has recently been published by Putnams, the neat and tasteful typography of which is fully in keeping with the careful work of its editor.

Baldwin's Party Leaders (10854, D.) gives parallel lives of Jefferson and Hamilton, and Magoon's Orators of the Revolution (8832, D.) depicts the latter as the master of political sagacity. Renwick's Lives of Jay and Hamilton (7102, D.) was intended as one of a series suitable for a school library.

Of the lives of Washington, that by Marshall (3797, O.), first published in 1804 in six volumes, stands pre-eminent on account of its judicial character, the peculiar facilities possessed by its author, and its being, with the exception of Ramsay's (8068, O.), the only important one written by a contemporary. It was afterwards revised by the author and compressed into two volumes (7376, O.) by the omission of irrelevant colonial history, and subsequently abridged into a single volume of convenient size.

The Life by Sparks (8930, O.) was originally published in connection with Washington's collected writings, and Irving's Life in five volumes (13654, O.) is characterized by the graceful style of the author; that by Everett (15450, D.), originally prepared for the Encyclopædia Britannica, was more hastily written than was the usual custom of its author, but among matters of special interest contained in it are a catalogue of Washington's library, and a detailed account of his last illness prepared by his physician.

The life by Schrœder (3583, Q.), in two imposing quartos, is one of the class of books subscribed for in numbers, the interest in them depending largely on the accompanying steel plates.

Cornelius De Witt's Histoire de Washington (13753, O.) has been highly commended, and Guizot's Washington prefixed to the French translation of his works has been translated into English by Henry Reeve (7017, D.). A suitable life for young people was published by the American Sunday School Union (51666, D.). Glass's Washingtonii vita affords us an excellent specimen of modern Latin.

Custis's Recollections (14966, O.) has the advantage of having been written by a member of his own household, and Rush's Washington in Domestic Life (14136, D.) is compiled mainly from correspondence with Tobias Lear, his private secretary, connected by a slender thread of narrative.

Weems's Life (3453, D.) is chiefly remarkable for its quaintness of style, and for containing the first record of the cherry-tree incident, a record which has raised a question as to whether the biographer did not lack at least one of the virtues of his hero. Many editions have been published, and it has been translated into German (50744, D.). Another life in German is that by Venedey (14394, D.).

The Life written by Headly as an independent work (13955, O.), and in Washington and his Generals (8539, D.), that by Abbott in the Pioneer and Patriot series (21380, D.), and in the Lives of the Presidents (20269, O.), derive whatever merit they possess from the style of diction rather than from scholarly investigation.

Mrs. Kirkland's Memoirs (11896, D.) is written avowedly for "young people," and as such it is well written. Mr. John Habberton in the series of American Worthies has written a Life of Washington (31309, D.) which is intended to be funny, and perhaps it is, the author assigning as his reason that he "did not know how to write it in any other way".

We must not overlook Bancroft's Life (3873, O.), which was written not by the Nestor of our living historians, but by his father; nor Simpson's Parallel Lives of Washington and Jefferson (5770, D.). The Washingtoniana (8069, O.), published originally in 1802, contains besides the Life, a large number of Eulogies, Orations, and Poems to his memory. It was republished in 1865 (2952, Q.) by F. B. Hough, who added a bibliography of the subject.

The genealogy of Washington (3717, Q.) has been traced by Albert Welles to Odin the founder of Scandinavia, and W. S. Baker, author of the Engraved Portraits of Washington (10360, Q.) and the Medallic Portraits of Washington (10589, Q.) has compiled as a companion volume the Character Portraits (4168, Q.).

The Walter Memorials (25005, O.) contain much original matter and are of special interest for the portraits and information connected with them.

Of the few remaining members of the Convention, brief sketches may be found in Allen's American Biographical Dictionary (14160, O.), Poore's Political Register (3625, Q.), Lanman's Biographical Annals (3440, Q.), Drake's Dictionary (19190, O.), and Appleton's Cyclopædia of American Biography (4163, Q.). Framers of the Constitution is the title of an instructive article by Mrs. Lamb in her Magazine for 1885, pp. 313–45 (3545, Q.). It is accompanied by eighteen portraits. Prof. McMaster, in his usual felicitous style, has given us a similar article entitled The Framers and the Framing of the Constitution, in The Century, for September, 1887 (18788, O.).

As evidence that Americans have stronger cause than a preference based on mere local partiality or even patriotic sentiment to be proud of their Fundamental Law and to venerate the wisdom of its framers, I may fittingly close these notes by quoting the opinion of one beyond the range of either of these influences, the foremost of England's living statesmen :—

"THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION IS, SO FAR AS I CAN SEE, THE MOST WONDERFUL WORK EVER STRUCK OFF AT A GIVEN TIME BY THE BRAIN AND PURPOSE OF MAN. It has had a century of trial, under the pressure of exigencies caused by an expansion unexampled in point of rapidity and range; and its exemption from formal change, though not entire, has certainly proved the sagacity of the constructors, and the stubborn strength of the fabric."— William Ewart Gladstone.

Library Company of Philadelphia

For January, 1888.

JANUARY, 1888.

BULLETIN

OF THE

LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 20.

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,

ALSO

RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.

SUNDAY, 1 TO 6 P. M., FOR READERS ONLY.

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them may pay at the desk the cost of postal cards, and will then be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.

Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books — four volumes at a time—without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

As the Library needs many of its former Bulletins and Reports to meet the requests of other Libraries and Institutions, the Librarian will be glad to receive any such from members or others who may be willing to make such disposition of them.

EXTRACT FROM THE RULES.

Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

WINDISCH, C. G. de—Letters. Basle, 1783. 54978, O. 5.

For the above collection relating to the celebrated automaton chess-player, the Library is indebted to Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, who has written the most authentic account of its history and construction that has appeared. This account was published anonymously in the Chess monthly, above named. The collection was received from his father, the late Dr. John K. Mitchell, who was much interested in the subject. It had previously been the property of Mälzel, who reconstructed and exhibited the automaton in this country. The fragment referred to is the only existing relic of this celebrated piece of mechanism, and consists of the chess-board used by the inside operator.

BULLETIN

OF THE

Library Company of Philadelphia

For July, 1888.

JULY, 1888.

BULLETIN

OF THE

LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 21.

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,

ALSO

RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.
SUNDAY, 1 TO 6 P. M., FOR READERS ONLY.

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them may pay at the desk the cost of postal cards, and will then be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.

Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books — four volumes at a time—without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

As the Library needs many of its former Bulletins and Reports to meet the requests of other Libraries and Institutions, the Librarian will be glad to receive any such from members or others who may be willing to make such disposition of them.

EXTRACT FROM THE RULES.

Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

BULLETIN

OF THE

Library Company of Philadelphia

For January, 1889.

JANUARY, 1889.

BULLETIN

OF THE

LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

NEW SERIES, No. 22.

ROOMS, N. W. COR. LOCUST AND JUNIPER STREETS,

ALSO

RIDGWAY BRANCH, INCLUDING LOGANIAN LIBRARY, BROAD AND CHRISTIAN STREETS.

OPEN FROM 8½ A. M. TO 6 P. M.
SUNDAY, 1 TO 6 P. M., FOR READERS ONLY.

Members of the Bell Telephone Exchange can communicate directly with the Library at Locust and Juniper Streets.

Persons wishing to have books kept for them may pay at the desk the cost of postal cards, and will then be notified when such books are in. Each card is good for one book only.

Members and Subscribers are allowed to open an account at the Ridgway Branch and take out the usual number of books — four volumes at a time—without regard to the state of their account at the Library.

As the Library needs many of its former Bulletins and Reports to meet the requests of other Libraries and Institutions, the Librarian will be glad to receive any such from members or others who may be willing to make such disposition of them.

EXTRACT FROM THE RULES.

Persons not members may take books out of the Library on the same conditions as members, by paying in advance twelve dollars for one year, six dollars for six months, or four dollars for three months, commencing at any period.

LIST OF THE MORE IMPORTANT BOOKS ADDED SINCE JANUARY, 1889.

[The letter R indicates the Ridgway Branch, and L the Loganian Library.]

RELIGION.

ABBOT, Ezra—Authorship of the Fourth Gospel and other critical essays. Boston, 1888.
R. 55502, O.

"These essays are characterized by laborious research and conscientious discrimination."—Nation, 1246.

"Prof. Abbot was one of the most learned men this country has produced, and he embodies much of his learning in this volume. . . . To Biblical students it will be of great value, for it represents the highest mark yet reached in critical study in this country."—Critic, 285.

AMERICAN Catholic Quarterly Review, vol. XII. Phila. 1887. R. 53552, O.

ANDOVER review, vol. X. B. 1888.
24271, O.

ARMSTRONG, Richard A.—Pulpit studies from "Robert Elsmere." 4th ed. Liverpool, 1889.

BLUNT, Henry—Lectures on the history of Elisha. Phila. 1839. R. 52540, D.

BLUNT, J. J.—Veracity of the Gospels and acts of the apostles. 2d Am. ed. N. Y. 1842.
R. 52541, D.

BOARDMAN, Geo. Dana—The Ten Commandments. A course of lectures delivered before the University of Pennsylvania. Phila. n. d. R. 52875, D.

"All that can possibly be done to make a book attractive, useful, and comfortable to a reader has been done by author and publisher; the apparatus of good book-making is complete, from frontispiece to double index. From the earliest to the latest commentators Dr. Boardman draws light and illustration, and the foot-notes and quotations show a wide range of reading. While no originality of thought is even attempted, the interpretations, exposition, and comment are full of insight, balance, variety, and a winsomeness that make lofty morality very beautiful."—Critic, 283.

BRONSON, Oliver—Sermons, with a memoir by William B. Sprague. Albany, 1861.
Gift of Martin I. J. Griffin, Esq. R. 55314, O.

"The book is the most readable production on the history of Christianity during the first four centuries that we have in English. . . . Every page bears traces that the author has gone to the original sources, and has consulted the ablest modern works on patristic literature."—Athenæum.

"While we cannot call Farrar the Plutarch of early Christianity, these his latest volumes seem marked for long popularity. His flowing style, brilliant diction, and exhaustless stores of information embodying the best of ancient, mediæval, and most recent learning and criticism, commend him as the guide and labor-saving friend of those who prefer to drift pleasantly down his full stream than to swim through the ocean of the 'authorities.'"—Critic, 282.

JESSOPP, Rev. Augustus, D.D.—The coming of the friars. 33661, D.

"Taken together, they present a picture of the life and social environment of our ancestors . . . such as we believe cannot anywhere else be found. We know nothing to compare with it except Pauly's 'Pictures of Old England;' and Pauly, if a greater scholar than Dr. Jessopp, did not possess his direct personal interest in and associations with his subject."—Nation, 1252.

"Dr. Jessopp is a strictly accurate person, an antiquary as plodding as Thomas Hearne, and one who has read as discursively as the author of the 'Anatomy of Melancholy.' . . . He has behind and beyond these qualifications the power of writing in a picturesque style which is unique among English men of letters. It flashes and glimmers with thought in a way which reminds us of nothing in our literature."—Notes and Queries.

KER, John—Lectures on the history of preaching. N. York, 1889. R. 55402, O.

"Its originality, its learning, its acuteness, and its vigorous and incisive style—admirably reproduced in this translation—will be generally acknowledged; and the very novelty of the aspect under which it presents the familiar persons and stories of the Old Testament will cause it to be read with the keenest interest."—Scotsman.
". . . There is much that is admirable in what he says of the work and influence of the Prophets. . . . Here M. Renan, though he cannot deliver himself from his habit of exaggerations and arbitrary assumptions, speaks in a way that will command the assent of those who find themselves for the most part little in accord with him."—Spectator, 3176.

"His knowledge of tree-lore, local, legendary, and historical, is extensive. His book is very pleasant reading, indeed. There is agreeable evidence in it that he is an observer after Gilbert White's heart, as well as a lover of trees, who knows his Evelyn and his Gilpin, his Gerard and Turner. From poets and from general literature he has drawn instructive illustration."—Saturday Review, 1737.

"We have an elaborate, scholarly treatise on profit sharing that in a good degree will supersede all previous works on the subject. Mr. Dexter has undertaken to make a complete hand-book on the subject of coöperative savings and loan associations, and he has succeeded well. He has written from personal experience as a member of such associations, supplemented by thorough comparative study. The result is a book that not only explains clearly the principles upon which the typical association is founded, and describes the numerous modifications now in operation, but corrects numerous false impressions, and points out the methods of organization and conduct that are safe, equitable, and successful."—Political Science Quarterly.

DANTE—The Banquet (Il Convito). Translated by Katharine Hillard. London, 1889. R. 52814, D.

". . . In the passages which we have tested, we have not found a single instance of mistranslation. The notes at the bottom of the page, too, are usually excellent, sometimes original and suggestive, and especially definite in points of historical allusion and in parallels between corresponding passages in the 'Convito' and in the 'Divine Comedy.'"—Nation, 1253.

"Miss Hillard's translation of the 'Convito' will be welcomed by English students of Dante unacquainted with this work, and even to those thoroughly familiar with Italian, it will help to elucidate those obscure passages which so frequently recur in Dante's works, and render the whole chapter containing them more or less incomprehensible."—Spectator, 3181.

"A handsome and deeply interesting volume. . . . . In all respects the book is excellent. Its arrangement is simple and intelligible, its style bright and alluring; authorities are cited at the foot of the page, and a full index is appended. . . . . To all who seek an introduction to one of the most attractive branches of folk-lore, this delightful volume may be warmly commended."—Notes and Queries.

"A work as admirable in its conception as in its execution. . . . . ANTOINETTE; or, the marl-pit mystery. By Georges Ohnet. Ph. 1889. 28215, D.

"'Antoinette' is an intensely dramatic story that deals with life in Normandy. A bitter feud, emanating from an early love affair, exists for many years between two factions of La Neuville. The dearest sentiments and the strongest feelings have play to denote nature and character, which are faithfully portrayed in all their meaning and influence. The sequel to the quarrel culminates in a particularly charming manner, and the novel will take rank with the best fiction of the day."—Critic, 284.

CLEOPATRA. By H. Rider Haggard. N. Y. 1889. 28254, D.

"Cleopatra will prove for readers of She to be like revisiting past scenes of delight; not that Mr. Rider Haggard is a vain repeater of old achievements, but because the romantic elements that pervade the wild and wondrous tale of Kôr are scarcely less potent and impressive in the new romance. . . . It is told, moreover, with skill and power striking enough to add to Mr. Haggard's reputation as a story-teller."—Saturday Review, 1758.

COUNTRY Cousin. By Frances Mary Peard. N. Y. 1889. 28243, D.

"The story—one of the best that Frances Mary Peard has written—is brilliantly told, with the spontaneity of youth. The strokes of character are done with such swiftness, the actions are so much the outward expression of each being's ego, the incidents illustrate so subtly the truths of nature that before we know it each character has reached the development of his own spiritual capacity, and the story is done."—Critic.

"It is a good book, which, in spite of its somewhat depressing atmosphere, will be read with great pleasure by lovers of refined and thoughtful work."—The Spectator, 3174.

DALBROOM folks. By Rev. J. Smith. 2 vols. Paisley, 1888. 28224, D.

"Dalbroom, we need hardly say, is a small town in North Britain. Its inhabitants, male and female, are, so to speak, photographed here not only with fidelity, but with, what is less easy of attainment, some amount of artistic treatment. Now and then the writer rises into what is really striking, and he never falls below a very fair average of excellence."—The Spectator, 3170.

DESPOT of Broomsedge Cove. By Chas. Egbert Craddock [Mary N. Murfree]. B. 1889. 28078, D.

"The author's latest book is her best, though in the quality of freshness to some extent discounted by its famous predecessors. It is as full of dialect, but it has more 'English' in it, and in color and picturesqueness it is certainly a brilliant piece of work."—The Academy, 886.

"In the 'Despot of Broomsedge Cove' all Miss Murfree's characteristic literary qualities are once more emphasized. The exquisite descriptions of the grand, lovely scenery of the Far West, the quaint humor and irresistible pathos bred of life under such conditions as those which environ her characters, the whimsicalities of electioneering, the curious mixture of simplicity and shrewdness . . . are all delineated with a blended vigor and acuteness which give to the work the hall-mark of genius."—Court Journal.

"Full of the racy humor of the soil and this in turn is cheerfully blended with touches of genuine pathos that the reader by a sudden turn in the narration is often moved to smile and sometimes almost to tears."—Publishers' Circular, 2139.

FAR away and long ago. By Frances Anne Kemble. N. Y. 1889. 28207, D.
"Mrs. Kemble's new romance, fresh and full of life as everything she has ever written, is quite worthy of the author of perhaps the most delightful volumes of reminiscences published in this generation. The story has in it the great elements of refreshment and surprise, and apart from the repute of the writer, would command popularity by its vivacity and grace."—Observer.

". . . Apart from its merits it may be said to have a charm upon the attention of the public as its birthright. . . . The lighter and less tragical portions of the story are decidedly those in which Mrs. Kemble has been most successful."—Athenæum, 3215.

"An interesting and in some respects a powerful story of life in New England in the days before railroads, when the Indian yet lingered in Massachusetts. . . . The characters are vigorously drawn, the presentment is strikingly natural, the pathos and humor delightful, and the tragical element is treated in an imaginative spirit. Altogether one does not need the assurance that it is a 'true story.' How far it is true in the base sense of the word, being founded on fact, no reader will greatly care to know; for it has the higher quality of truth—truth of observation, analysis, and human nature—that wants no documentary credentials."—Saturday Review, 1753.

". . . It is a powerful story, powerfully told, and a very strong contrast, in its straightforward dignity of tone and style, to the ordinary story of the present day."—Spectator, 3182.

FAR in the forest. By S. Weir Mitchell. Ph. 1889. 28177, D.
"All in all, the story is perhaps the best that has yet appeared from Dr. Mitchell's graceful pen."—The Critic, 278.

"All the characters contribute something to the clearly conceived plot, and none could have been omitted without loss to the dramatic intensity of the last chapters."—Nation, 1252.

"This novel takes rank above any which Dr. Mitchell has published, in the originality of its conception and the strength of characters which it arrays before us."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Girl graduate. By Celia Parker Woolley. B. 1889. 28201, D.

"It is a perfect picture of the sturdy, self-suppressed, unsensitive, bourgeois life in an ordinary village, the characters being of that class to whom truth is rigid, education a sacrament, the fine arts a mystery, and one born out of the pale of Christendom a heathen."—Critic, 289.

Greifenstein. By F. Marion Crawford. L. 1889. 28164, D.

"Mr. Crawford has written about people of many nationalities, but never, perhaps, has he been more imbued with the national spirit he infuses into his characters, nor more carried away by the fascination of the local coloring with which he enriches his canvas."—American, 459.

"'Greifenstein' is didactic and mechanical. The scene is laid in Germany, and the first volume contains a good description of the Black Forest and a very elaborate account of student life, and especially duelling."—The Athenæum, 3208.

"With the exception of 'Saracinesca,' his most consistent work, Mr. Crawford has not written anything so good as his last novel, 'Greifenstein.'"—Saturday Review, 1749.

"Altogether, we like 'Greifenstein' decidedly—so much so as to doubt whether it does not dislodge 'A Roman Singer' from that place hitherto occupied by the latter, as our favorite amongst Mr. Crawford's novels."—The Spectator, 3173.

"Her new story, which deals with Knickerbocker life and character in the old-fashioned town of New Utrecht, has the skill in characterization, the spicy wit, and the abundance of interesting incident which distinguished the former story."—Critic, 285.

"There is a wholesome vein of humor through the book, which is just such a one as Judge Haliburton might write if he had turned attention to the important servant girl instead of the Acadian farmer and farmer's wife. It is full of anecdotes, good sense, and shrewd observation."—Critic, 289.

"Previous performances will have led the public to expect work of a high order from Mr. Julian Corbett, and in 'Kophetua' they will not be disappointed. . . . In following out the tangled web of cross purposes involved in these complications, as well as in description and dramatic power, Mr. Corbett displays capacity of no ordinary kind, and his book ought to be one of the successes of the season."—Academy.

"Miss Carey is a woman's reader. If she had deliberately planned to do so she could not have been more successful in pleasing that large number of women and young girls who, possessed of refined tastes, exalted ideas, and a capacity to appreciate and sympathize with all that is noble in character, seek in books that satisfaction which is not always obtained in real life."—New York Morning Journal.

MEXICAN Mystery. By W. Grove. 7th ed. L. 1889. 28214, D.

MICAH Clarke. By A. Conan Doyle. L. 1889. 28192, D.

". . . It is from every point of view, one of the most admirable and interesting historical tales written in our generation."—Academy.

"This is a story of personal adventure, rich in incidents and situations, and alive with picturesque characters; but this is only the foreground of a powerfully conceived and clearly delineated picture of one of the most stirring episodes of English history."—Scotsman.

"Two or three books equal to this in freshness, interest, and literary skill would amply suffice to win for him a high place among living English novelists. . . . Seems to us little less than a masterpiece. Without a single exception, the characters, both historical and imaginary, are living, breathing men and women, painted with sharp, clear outline and rich color; nearly every chapter has in store for us some new incident which is both interesting in itself and artistically valuable as a contribution to the evolution of the plot, while the style is everything that the style of a book should be—clear, simple, strong, utterly devoid of any meretricious ornament, and yet with the charm which always belongs to the perfect adaptation of means to ends. This will seem high praise, and as such we intend it. . . . It begins to be interesting in the first chapter, and continues to be interesting to the last."—The Spectator, 3174.

OPEN door. By Blanche Willis Howard. B. 1889. 28165, D.

"The interest of the story, which is very sweet and engaging, is in seeing how he is won from bitterness by Gabrielle, a charming picture of young womanhood. The story is in some respects stronger than the former works of this author that have appeared. As it has all the old grace of manner, it should prove doubly popular."—Scotsman.

ORTHODOX. By Dorothea Gerard. N. Y. 1888. 28071, D.

OUR uncle and aunt. By Amarala Martin. N. Y. 1888. 28077, D.

"Of all the books that have been written with the purpose of ameliorating the condition of women, there are few that will prove more effective upon the mind of the average voter."—The Nation, 1242.

OUTCASTS. Being certain strange passages in the life of a clergyman. 2 vols. Edin. 1888. 28048, D.

PASSE Rose. By Arthur Sherburne Hardy. B. 1889. 28142, D.

"Mr. Hardy has written a rarely perfect story, combining the undying and inexplicable charm of a fairy tale with the definable merits of the best fiction that deals with actual life and human character."—Nation, 1252.

"In 'Passe Rose' Mr. A. S. Hardy has succeeded in a most difficult undertaking. He has made a life-like story of the time of Charlemagne. . . . To have made the story not only readable, but attractive, is an achievement. But further, the book may be taken to give promises for the future, for it proves that Mr. Hardy has improved rapidly and has the gift of taking pains, and has not been spoilt by the success of his first little novel, which was not entirely merited."—Athenæum, 3217.

"A genuine romance, harmonious in tone and unique in imaginative conception, rivalling the best works of Mr. R. L. Stevenson in the rapid succession of striking incidents, and excelling them in the power of exciting personal sympathy for its characters. Its style has a grace and a force seldom equalled, with an entire absence of trick and affectation."—Illustrated London News.

PENANCE of John Logan, and other tales. By Wm. Black. L. 1889. 28211, D.

"'The Penance of John Logan' is so well contrived, so brightly told, and so life-like, that its simple pathos is irresistible."—Athenæum.

PERIL of Richard Pardon. By B. L. Farjeon. N. Y. 1888. 25852, O.

PRETTY sister of José. By Frances Hodgson Burnett. N. Y. 1889. 28160, D.

"The 'Pretty Sister of José' is delightfully written, and the bull-fight scenes, especially the last, are pieces of genuinely graphic description. But it is too much of a one-character piece. José is all that is lovable, vigilant and respectful in brothers, and Sebastian is such a manly fellow that one sympathizes invariably with him. But Mrs. Burnett is resolved that the attention of her readers shall be concentrated on Pepita and that struggle of hers between love and pride which ends in complete self-surrender. She succeeds almost too well."—Academy, 890.

"The story is one of a passionate love affair between a bull-fighter and a hot-tempered Spanish girl, who is drawn in charming touches of wilfulness and tenderness. It will probably enjoy a wide popularity."—Scotsman.

"Dramatic, simple as nature is simple, with a charm of youth and fervor, the story has through it the warm vivid coloring which comes to our cold northern climate only as the sunset hour, and which in Spain is the very day and nature and life itself."—Critic.

"The tale is full of sunshine and color, and the chief personages who figure in it are sketched with a skilful and sympathetic hand."—Publishers' Circular.

PROFESSOR'S sister. By Julian Hawthorne. Chi. [1888.] 28184, D.

QUAKER girl of Nantucket. By Mary Catherine Lee. B. 1889. 28143, D.

". . . Of interest chiefly for its pictures of scenery and studies of character and life on Nantucket. . . . There are several chapters that will repay the reader of ordinary fiction. The sketches of Obed Swain and Aunt Hepsy, and many details concerning them and their surroundings, are evidently drawn from the life."—American, 464.

RALEIGH Westgate. By Helen Kendrick Johnson. N. Y. 1889. 28180, D.

RED Carl. By J. J. Messmer. Translated by Mary E. Ireland. N. Y. [1888.] 28124, D.

REPROACH of Annesley. By Maxwell Grey. N. Y. 1889. 28187, D.

"It will undoubtedly give the author an assured place among the prose poets and masters of fiction. Its literary excellence is high and equal, and the descriptive passages are remarkable for their vivid reality, the fitness, strength, and flexibility of the style, and the perfect glow of the coloring."—Scotsman.

"It is from first to last intensely interesting, with that indescribable interest which can only be achieved by one who has mastered the difficult art of narration."—Manchester Examiner.

REUBEN Sachs. By Amy Levy. L. 1888. 28227, D.

"The merit of the book, which is great, consists in the extraordinary power with which the writer describes the general character of the Jewish group with which the sketch concerns itself."—Spectator.

ROCK or the rye. An understudy. After the "Quick or the dead." By T. De Leon. Mobile, 1888. 26536, D.

ROMANCE of a shop. By Amy Levy. B. 1889. 28128, D.

ROMANCES of the law. By R. E Francillon. L. 1889. 28231, D.

"For variety of incident, ingenuity of construction, and general literary excellence, these twelve 'romances' will fairly stand their ground against any recent collection. . . . Where everything is so good, it would be difficult, indeed useless, to enter into an examination of comparative merits. . . . Each is excellent."—Glasgow Herald.

"Mr. R. E. Francillon has a pleasant gift of invention, and always writes well, and though we do not think that his Romances of the Law represent him quite at his best, they provide interesting reading."—Spectator, 3179.

STEADFAST: The story of a saint and a sinner. By Rose Terry Cooke. B. 1889. 28102, D.

". . . Esther is particularly well drawn—and altogether 'Steadfast' is much above the average novel."—Nation.

STEEL hammer. By Louis Ulbach. Translated by E. W. Latimer. N. Y. [1888.] 28229, D.

STIFFNECKED generation. By L. B. Walford. N. Y. 1889. 28110, D.

"There is much that is unusually clever in the story. . . . The happiest idea in the entire book is that of bringing out the innate nobility of the discarded lover's nature under the influence of his disappointment. This is done with skill and feeling, and is the master-stroke of a well-written and absorbing story."—Morning Post.

"Mrs. Walford is always entertaining with her lovers. Her bright people are all very well, but her dull ones, like Miss Austen's, are delightful. She has now given us a book full of tiresome characters which show her pen at its cleverest. . . . Rarely has she done more ingenious writing than on some pages of this latest novel."—Nation.

"The book is mainly attractive in virtue of its bright, life-like conception, and artistic delineation of character."—Spectator.

STORIES for the people. By W. B. Horner. 2 series. L. [1888.] 3831, Q.

STORIES of the seen and the unseen. By Margaret O. W. Oliphant. B. 1889. 28168, D.

". . . No one could have written with more poetic delicacy of the subjective and objective blessedness of that state of future existence which the human heart pictures to itself by the word Heaven; and the story of 'Old Lady Mary' will remain a distinct success among tales of imaginative literature."—Critic, 282.

Two chiefs of Dunboy; or, an Irish romance of the last century. By James A. Froude. N. Y. 1889. 28171, D.
"Mr. Froude's historical imagination, vivid insight into character, and brilliant force of style, are all conspicuous in the new departure in literature which he has just made by publication of the 'Two Chiefs of Dunboy.'"—Publishers' Circular, 1238.
"There are scenes in this book which for their intense reality, the easy flow and exquisite fitness of the language, for the glow and stir of action which animate them, it would be hard to beat even out of Walter Scott; not Marryat, nor Cooper, nor Kingsley ever composed a finer sea-piece than the escape of the 'Doutelle' from the Eolus; nor has the profuse sweetness of Mr. Ruskin's style done more for Swiss mountain or Italian lake than the simple and restrained grace of Mr. Froude's does for the wild and melancholy beauty of the Irish landscape. . . . If there be any truth in the saying that the novelist must be our best teacher now, many a lesson should be learned by English and Irish alike from the pages of 'The Two Chiefs of Dunboy.'"—London World.

ULU. By Joseph Thomson and E. Harris Smith. New ed. L. 1889. 28213, D.
"A very well-written and interesting story."—Guardian.
"A picturesque, direct, well-told story. The pictures of savage life represent actual experiences of Mr. Thomson."—London Times.
"The book gives a vivid and realistic description of life amongst the native tribes in the heart of the Dark Continent, and Mr. Thomson's own adventures and travels in that mysterious region lend color and charm to what we believe is his first attempt in fiction."—Publishers' Circular, 1238.

UNCLE Peter's trust. By George B. Perry. N. Y. 1889. 28250, D.
"Of especial interest to bright and healthy boys who love to follow the adventurous career of a bright, brave boy."—Boston Globe.

UNCLE Piper, of Piper's Hill. By Tasma. 2d ed. L. 1889. 28194, D.
"A well written story."—Athenæum.
"The tone throughout the book is pure and healthy, the narrative brisk and cheerful, and there is every indication that 'Tasma' will some day take her place among the first and best of Australian writers of fiction."—Pall Mall Gazette.

WOODLAND wooing. By Eleanor Putnam. B. 1889. 28245, D.

"Some of the human curiosities of New England country life are cleverly described, and the Sparhaw family are drawn with humorous touches."—American, 465.

WRONG box. By Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne. N. Y. 1889. 28240, D.

"No matter how 'clever' one may be, one never feels, in reading a story of Stevenson's, that he himself 'could talk like that forever,' but he does feel that Stevenson could. And it looks very much as if he not only could, but were going to. For our part, we hope he will"—Critic, 288.

"This is a story in the delightfully crazy manner of the 'New Arabian Nights'—a farcical romance. . . . To the reader it will yield the rich enjoyment of watching the play of as fine a fancy as ever drew men's thoughts aside from every-day cares."—Scotsman.

"The Wrong Box is an extravaganza of the first water. It is supercharged with the frolicsome spirit and delicate humor that conjointly may be best described as 'very gay, very foolish indeed.' . . . What Messrs. Stevenson and Osbourne have perpetrated in this diverting book will decidedly fulfil the largest expectations of their readers."—Saturday Review, 1758.

ADAMS, Sir Francis Ottiwell—The Swiss confederation. By Sir F. O. Adams and C. D. Cunningham. London 1889. R. 55506, O.

"The authors appear to have clear conceptions of the individual departments of Swiss government, and devote one chapter to comparison with those of the United States. The characterization of the Swiss as a nation of good administrators is a point well taken. This is well illustrated in the chapters on the army and on education."—Nation, 1247.

BATEMAN, Chas. S. L.—The first ascent of the Kasai: being some records of service under the Lone Star. N. York, 1889. R. 55432, O.

"Mr. Bateman was for sometime captain and adjutant of gendarmerie in the Congo Free State. Our author's style is simple enough. He never strives after the ornate or the picturesque, but his account of a night-watch for buffaloes in an African forest is vivid almost to the verge of poetry."—Saturday Review, 1743.

BATTLES and leaders of the civil war, vol. IV. N. Y. [1888.] 4232, Q.

"Altogether it is a marvellous production, original in conception, admirable in execution. . . . Of the historical value of these papers it is impossible to form too high an estimate. Imagine that within the same covers two generations or more ago Napoleon and Prince Hohenlohe had given us their impressions of Jena, Grouchy and Blücher had told us of their respective marches at Waterloo, Soult and Lichtenstein had described the ice and frozen mud, the flanking movements, the charge and rout at Austerlitz—of what priceless value would such articles be! Equally priceless is the result of the labors of the editors of this work. They have constructed a great historical mosaic of the American war. The historian will study in it the opinions of the chief actors in the great struggle, and successive generations will turn to it to get the original tone and color of the time."—Critic, 284.

". . . He has written a most interesting book, which will we feel sure have the effect of sending many an English wanderer to these little known specks in the German Ocean. Compression is now the order of the day. Eighty years ago a man with one half Mr. Black's personal experiences would have produced a quarto. We wish he had been somewhat more discursive. The fragments of folk-lore he has given are all good, and make us very anxious for more."—Notes and Queries.

"A work of travels round the old world, very readable, and far better than the average of such books."—Athenæum, 3212.

". . . It contains much useful information for those who visit the countries which it describes, intermixed with moralizings of a kind which would have rejoiced the soul of Henri Monnier. And if we disregard its didactic purpose, skip judiciously, and treat it merely as the unconventional record of a pleasant holiday, it is by no means bad reading."—Saturday Review, 1752.

CHILD, Frank S.—South Dakota: resources, people, statehood. N. Y. 1888. 33745, D.

CHRONICLE of King Henry VIII. of England. Being a contemporary record written in Spanish by an unknown hand. Translated with notes by Martin A. Sharp Hume. London, 1889.
R. 52802, D.

"We have here a highly valuable narrative at first hand of many a scene which is familiar to every one as a fact in history, but is seldom realized from the description of an actual observer. . . . We trust that we have sufficiently indicated the general character of this little volume, and the real interest of its contents, to induce our readers to make acquaintance with it for themselves."—Athenæum.

"This curious account of the chief events of Henry's reign, as they struck a Spanish resident in London—trader or mercenary, it is not very clear which—came to light in 1873, and proves well worth the trouble of translating. The writer has no state secrets to disclose, but he can tell what he saw with his own eyes, and what was reported around him."—Spectator, 3179.

CLAYDEN, P. W.—Rogers and his contemporaries. 2 vols. London, 1889.
R. 52755, D.

"With the possible exception of Motley's letters, it is far the most readable book of the season; and it leaves a very pleasant impression of a man who had a really kind heart, a wide range of sympathies, and a generosity toward other authors, which is all the more welcome because it is so rare."—Pall Mall Gazette.

". . . As the host of an aristocracy of intellect in St. James's Place, where poets, statesmen, and wits met round his table, Rogers holds a distinguished position; and the biographer's account of the poet from the age of forty, when he settled in London, until his death half a century later, abounds in amusing gossip and literary recollections."—Spectator, 3178.

COCKBURN, Alex. Jas. E., Lord—Circuit journeys. Edinburgh, 1888.
R. 55199, O.

"The attraction of this book is due to the charm of the style, the cleverness with which characters are graphically sketched in a few words, and the impressions of Scotch life from 1837 to 1844, given by a Judge making his circuit with most of his family 'in and about' his carriage. Lord Cockburn had a real love of nature, and all the time he could spare from dealing with criminals he spent in exploring the lovely country through which he was fortunate enough to travel. The book, therefore, combines records of vile and insane deeds, and the curious idiosyncrasies of their perpetrators, with the most charming and even poetical description of scenery."—Murray's Magazine.

CREIGHTON, Mandell—Carlisle. [Historic towns.] L. 1889. 33859, D.

". . . It is the especial merit of Canon Creighton's work that he so clearly brings out the parts played by Carlisle as the outpost of the English kingdom and as the chief city of the Border-land. His book is not merely the chronicle of a town, but the history of that town's share in developing the life of the English State."—Saturday Review, 1750.

". . . A persistent pedestrian, a practical antiquary, and a native townsman of Carlisle, he has sought his lore from houses and relics and living witnesses, as well as from books and manuscripts. Hence there is a freshness and vividness in the treatment of the long and varied story which is notably absent from the closet historian's writings."—Critic, 288.

"Admirable presentations of their respective subjects. Mr. Fiske illustrates in his preface his purpose to answer vexed questions which the old-fashioned text-books not only did not try to answer, but did not even recognize the existence of; and in his book, as well as in that of Mr. Scudder, the skill with which important principles and facts are compressed within a small compass, without sacrificing the interest of the narrative, is remarkable."—Critic, 282.

"Col. Fergusson's own work in introduction, envoy, notes, and appendix is in all respects praiseworthy."—The Athenæum, 3208.

"A reprint of a curious historical authority very prettily executed, and illustrated in both senses of the word, by notes and by drawings, equally fully and well. . . . The Major's narrative is itself a distinct contribution to the accessible historical literature of the eighteenth century. It gives a curious picture of Lovat, the finished type of the Highland chief of the old stamp."—Saturday Review.

GARDINER, Samuel R.—History of the great civil war, 1642–9. Vols. I., II. London, 1886–9. 25080, 0.

"The years dealt with in the volume before us are among the most picturesque in our history, and Mr. Gardiner has worked upon them with a care and skill such as have not been before exhibited."—The Athenæum, 3208.

"Well worn as the story is, it assumes a surprising degree of freshness in his practised hands. It is not only merely that his invariable fairness presents familiar events from new points of view, there is also very much that is absolutely new in his narrative, and that not merely in the details. He has collected many new facts from the old sources, and more from sources that were unknown or inaccessible to his predecessors."—Academy, 890.

"In his present volume, and in all its predecessors, Dr. Gardiner gives abundant proof of his industry, historical insight, and critical ability. Every occurrence is carefully noted, and every intrigue thoroughly sifted. He describes his battles with more attempt at life than is exhibited in most of his work, and with a clearness which is due to his conscientious habit of visiting every battle-field, and using his own eyes to correct or explain contemporary accounts."—Saturday Review, 1755.

GARIBALDI—Autobiography of Giuseppe Garibaldi. Authorized translation by A. Werner. 3 vols. London, 1889. R. 52805, D.

". . . Every line in the Autobiography only expresses more deeply the portrait of Joseph Garibaldi upon the minds of his countrymen and of freemen everywhere, and shows that, as a hero on the simple old lines—a man of forthright action, of pure and burning patriotism and love of his fellow-men (priests and tyrants always excepted), and of honor as unsullied as his courage—there has scarce been any like him in our century."—Scotsman.

". . . The Autobiography and the Supplement give, we are assured, all that Garibaldi chose to tell the world, or permitted his family to make known. It must be confessed that the hero and his representatives have shown great discretion and good taste."—Saturday Review, 1752.

"Bright book, as we might expect from its author. The story of Henry V.'s life is told with spirit."—Athenœum.

"The incidents in Henry's life are clearly related, the account of the battle of Agincourt is masterly, and the style is eminently readable."—St. James Gazette.

"No page lacks interest; and whether the book is regarded as a biographical sketch or as a chapter in English military history it is equally attractive."—Scotsman.

"This book is very pleasant reading. In an eminently agreeable style Prof. Church gives us numerous interesting details of Henry V.'s life. He marshals the events of his reign in systematic order, and he never yields to the temptation to wander into irrelevant questions."—The Academy, 887.

"A rapid but lucid and interesting sketch of the prehistoric archæology of Sweden."—Academy, 893.
"This translation, which has been made from the second edition of Professor Montelius's great work, and brought down to the year 1888, may be taken as the summary of Swedish antiquarian knowledge as regards that country's ancient civilization. Professor Montelius has shown clearly enough the value of contemporary evidence as compared to even the Sagas, besides reaching back to legendary time."—Spectator, 3178.

"Not unattractive, and though brief, will, we think, be of real use and profit. It will fulfil the purpose of giving to a beginner the outlines of French history without the incumbrance of too many dry bones."—Critic, 282.
"The author has shown competent judgment in the choice of his facts, and his style is clear and interesting. The proportions are well observed, and the political significance of events is given due prominence in his treatment. So far as we have noticed, unusual accuracy has been achieved."—Nation.

"He has brought out strongly and interestingly the character and career of the great Bishop. All Church-men should read the book, whether here or across the water. It is a real accession to the history of the present century, and of the wondrous advance made by the Church of England in recent times."—Church Times.

"Of fuller and more varied interest than any previous record of the Bishop's life and work. . . . Worth retelling, and revived with excellent effect by Canon Curteis, is the story of Selwyn's journeyings by land and sea, his negotiations with Maoris and settlers, his organization of Church and school work, his shipwreck at New Caledonia, when he showed by his diving feats the skill and courage displayed in similar exploits of his school-days at Eton."—Saturday Review, 1744.

"His picture of the Scotland of Mary Stuart is wonderfully graphic. Never before have the characters of the leading men been drawn in such vivid colors; never before has the ruin wrought by Knox been shown forth in such unredeemed ghastliness; never before has the chicane of Cecil and Elizabeth been more pitilessly laid bare. The book contains the last word on the Mary Stuart controversy."—London Graphic, January 19, 1889.

SOPHIA, Electress of Hanover—Memoirs. Translated by H. Forester. London. 1888. R. 52619, D.

"We are glad to learn what she was like and what were her experiences before she stood out as a personage on the stage of Europe. That curiosity may now be gratified by the perusal of her too brief reminiscences, for they are brought to an abrupt close more than thirty years before she died of old age in 1714. . . . No one need expect to find in it 'political' or State secrets, or any but the slightest references to the wars, revolutions and confusions of that most eventful fifty years. It is almost wholly a domestic narrative."—The Spectator, 3163.

STAEL, Mme. de—Madame de Stael, her friends and her influence in politics and literature. By Lady Blennerhassett. 3 vols. London, 1889. R. 55480, O.

"It must be the reader's own fault if he does not rise from the perusal of these volumes with a clear idea of what Madame de Stael was, and what her work in the world amounted to."—Quarterly Review.

". . . Lady Blennerhassett saw a splendid opportunity, and had the resolution to attempt a tremendous task. We are glad to say that her capacity for it was equal to her ambition, and we can congratulate her on a great success. She has written in a thoroughly impartial spirit a book which must take rank as a standard of authority. . . . Dip where we will, there is always something to interest, and we are irresistibly carried along by the ease and smoothness of the style. It is full of pleasant anecdote, and abounds in those personal traits and touches which give life and color to contemporary portraits. Its historical accuracy is generally guaranteed by the frequent references in the foot-notes."—Saturday Review, 1751.

"A great historical and biographical encyclopædia. There is no page that is not interesting reading."—London Times.

"It is one of the brightest and most trustworthy records of the time in question that we possess. No good source of information as to the personages it deals with has escaped Lady Blennerhassett's researches. Anecdotes new to English readers often light up her narrative, and her writing is clear, unaffected, and generally vigorous."—Academy, 896.
